

For 1972?

President Traveling

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — President Nixon, holding his first high-noon urban motorcade in the North since the 1970 campaign, got a campaign-style welcome in Rochester today.

Many thousands, plentifully armed with flags, and homemade placards, lined downtown streets and, for the most part, cheered.

Anti-Vietnam war banners were frequently in evidence, however, as Nixon drove through the streets standing and waving through the open roof of his bullet proof limousine. He rode with New York's Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Well in advance of Nixon's flight with wife Pat to Rochester's Monroe County Airport, the White House was asked if a campaign-style cavalcade through downtown streets was planned.

Gerald L. Warren, Nixon's deputy press secretary, said the chief executive simply would drive from the airport to a hotel. Of course, Warren added, any spontaneous outpouring along the motorcade route would not meet with White House disfavor.

That seemed to be Warren's shorthand way of saying the lunch-hour timing of Nixon's arrival and the advance presence here of men skilled in arranging campaign travels were not entirely accidental.

Officially, Nixon chose to visit Rochester to talk to newspaper and broadcast executives from 12 states and the District of Columbia, then visit briefly with a citizens' group lobbying for revenue sharing—a key and embattled administration congressional goal.

Antiwar groups announced they would attempt to get their share of seats in the Rochester Flagship Hotel, site of the Nixon meeting. The protest groups predicted 5,000 demonstrators; authorities said more than 800 policemen would be on hand.

Nixon had been due here last winter to promote revenue sharing and other major domestic proposals but heavy snow forced postponement.

The President has held two similar meetings this year—the first in Des Moines in February and last month in Birmingham, Ala. He has said three more regional conferences are in prospect.

Birmingham was a success. Large and friendly crowds turned out, prompting Nixon to deliver an unscheduled speech in front of a hotel from a portable podium that just happened to be handy.

Des Moines, where Nixon addressed the Iowa Legislature and conferred with some governors, wasn't an untarnished success.

Friends Put Mills In '72 Candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — With $200 in bumper stickers and a little help from his friends, Rep. James A. Burke, has put Wilbur Mills on the list of candidates for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

Burke, a Boston congressman since 1958, seems at first glance an unlikely wagon-master for the campaign of Mills, powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

About all they have in common are membership on Ways and Means and reputations for Democratic party regularity. Burke, a jovial Irishman who was a Chicago policeman before he moved to Boston and got into politics, has seldom surfaced from the anonymity of the House rank and file. Mills, a quiet-spoken Harvard-educated lawyer, has been a power in the House since World War II.

Arkansas' Mills disavows the candidacy and says a recent speaking tour around the country is designed solely to generate support for his opposition to President Nixon's revenue-sharing plan.

He has said that he tried to discourage the presidential talk, and discounts any suggestion he might be able to win the nomination.

"I have tried as best I can to control what my friends are doing, but I cannot," he said.

Nevertheless, said Burke, the movement will continue, probably at a low key, until the Democratic convention next year.

"After Labor Day," he said, "I wouldn't be surprised to see some interested people get together to decide if there should be an organization."

It all began, Burke said, over lunch in the House restaurant where a few congressmen were discussing possible alternatives to a half dozen Democrats, all from the Senate, seriously under discussion as an opponent for President Nixon in 1972.

"The name of Wilbur Mills came up and everybody seemed to agree," Burke said in an interview, "that he would make a great president and could be elected."

That was in January. Since then, more than 80 congressmen have endorsed Mills, said Burke, admitting he has leaked the endorsements piecemeal to maintain momentum for the campaign.

Outside Washington, Burke said, he took an informal poll among 300 constituents pitting Nixon against Mills, and 65 per cent chose Mills. The statistic loses some impact, however, when a look at the last election returns shows 143,000 Democratic votes in Burke's district to 34,000 for all opponents combined.

Change Is Suggested In Monetary System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of White House economic advisers says more flexibility should be built into the international monetary system to avoid a repetition of such currency crises as struck the dollar in May.

Dr. Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, did not commit himself to any particular solution, saying only that "more adjustment capability" must be worked into the present system, in which the dollar has a fixed value in relation to other foreign currencies.

"What we have to do is find some way to have our system remain a little more orderly, or a little less susceptible to strains when domestic economies of the various nations get out of step, as they will from time to time," he said in an interview with The Associated Press.

In the recent currency upheaval, speculators rushed to unload dollars for German marks, in expectation the mark would be revalued upward. Dollars and flowed to Europe in excessive volume because interest rates there were higher than in the United States. The rush subsided when Germany let the mark "float" to find a higher value, in terms of the dollar, in world money markets.

Turning to the domestic economy, McCracken supplied first official word that the Nixon administration is dissatisfied with the pace of current economic recovery.

He said the economy is moving too slowly to cut into the high rate of unemployment and President Nixon will decide in July or August whether to stick with his present policy or propose new stimulants, such as a tax cut.

Nixon Victory In House Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's program to phase out the Indochina war has won a hands-off from Congress with rapid-fire House rejection of a Dec. 31 pullout or any other deadline.

Attempts to put the House on record for a June 1 U.S. pullout, an April 30 deadline and variations of the Dec. 31 war halt were shouted down and voted out Thursday one after the other.

The Senate had rejected 55 to 42 Wednesday the Hatfield-McGovern amendment to actually cut off funds and troops for the war Dec. 31.

All seven House end-the-war measures were rejected even after backers stressed they would only register Congress' desire for a date of a certain halt to the war—not tie the President's hands by cutting off money, troops or weapons.

But House antiwar forces mustered their biggest vote yet in losing the key Nedzi-Whalen Dec. 31 date by a vote of 254 to 158.

The amendment would have prohibited war use of any of the $21.1 billion in a weapons authorization bill after Dec. 31 unless the President declared this would jeopardize safe withdrawal of U.S. troops or release of American prisoners.

Rep. Jucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., and Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, said their amendment would only register a stand on the war because none of the long-range money in the bill could reach Indochina before 1973 or 1974.

But opponents, including the House leadership, called the proposal "a cruel hoax" that would not end the war and a meaningless amendment that would disrupt the Paris peace talks by misleading enemy negotiators as well as the American public.

After rejecting the war-halt amendments, the House approved the $21.1-billion weapons authorization 331 to 58 and sent it to the Senate.

In the rapid series of votes after four hours of debate on the war:

—A June 30 deadline provided American prisoners were released at least 60 days before then was defeated 237 to 147.

—An April 31 U.S. pullout if a cease-fire and prisoner release were arranged beforehand was shouted down by voice vote.

—The Dec. 31 pullout provided a cease-fire and prisoner release were arranged first lost by voice vote.

—A flat Dec. 31 pullout was defeated 328 to 82.

—A "signal to Hanoi" that the House would support a Dec. 31 U.S. withdrawal only if American prisoners were released by Aug. 31 was defeated 146 to 37.

—A proposal urging total U.S. withdrawal "at the earliest practicable date" was rejected by voice vote.

Times Seeks Order's Halt

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times asked a federal judge today to lift its order temporarily halting its publication of stories based on secret Pentagon papers because the Washington Post is publishing similar material.

The Times denied the government's contention that the series about the origins of the Vietnam war was injuring the national defense.

In any case, the newspaper's lawyer argued, the question is "moot" because of the Washington Post articles.

"This radically changes the posture of the case, and the temporary restraining order your honor issued," the Times attorney, Prof. Alexander M. Bickel, told Judge Murray I. Gurfein in U.S. District Court.

Bickel said that the Washington Post article draws upon some of the same documents the Times used, and that the Post is disseminating its series to 345 clients of the Washington Post-Los Angeles Times News Service.

In an advisory to editors, the Post said that its series was based on the study that Gurfein had ordered the Times to stop printing but that nothing in its article "could be used to injure the United States."

The Post story today said the Pentagon study asserts there was no connivance in 1955 between the United States and the Saigon regime to prevent elections throughout Vietnam as agreed to by the Geneva Conference a year earlier.

The Times had opened its court argument by stating that the series did not in any way "endanger or injure American Forces."

"The Times has not published sailing dates of troop transports, not published secret plans of future military maneuvers, not published data relating to weapons systems or the like," the newspaper said in a legal brief.

The brief was entered just before the hearing began on a Justice Department request for a temporary injunction to block publication of further articles based on the Pentagon study about U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war through the Johnson administration.

The government had obtained a restraining order Tuesday, after the third article in the Times' series appeared, preventing further publication of the reports until 1 p.m. Saturday.

The Times brief said that there was no prospect that any future articles in the series could endanger the armed forces.

The government has maintained that the stores "prejudice the defense interests of the United States and result in irreparable injury to the national defense."

The newspaper already has given the Justice Department a list of the classified Pentagon documents upon which it has based its articles.

The Times acted voluntarily Thursday on the urging of U.S. Dist. Court Judge Murray I. Gurfein who withheld any immediate action on the government's demand to inspect the Times' documents.

Gurfein ruled out a government request to see all classified material in the Times' files, saying, "I'm not tolerating any fishing expedition into the files of any newspaper."

The documents sought by Asst. U.S. Atty. Michael D. Hess were a 47-volume secret Pentagon study entitled "History of U.S. Decision-Making Process on Vietnam Policy" and a summary of "The Command and Control Study of the Tonkin Gulf Incident."

The Times suspended publication of the controversial series after Gurfein issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday and scheduled today's full dress injunction hearing for 10 a.m.

In a brief filed late Thursday for today's hearing, the government said it would argue that while the First Amendment guarantees the freedom of speech and press "it is equally clear that these freedoms are not absolute."

There were also these developments in the case:

—The chairman of the House government information subcommittee, Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., said the case has spurred plans for a major reappraisal of the government's secrecy policy and possible overclassification or misclassification of some documents.

—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called for full disclosure of secret government data on Vietnam policies during the administration of President John F. Kennedy, saying, "The public ought to be the final judge of the whole period of the 1960s, and before, in Vietnam."

—Daniel Ellsberg, an MIT researcher, was named by a former Times newsman, Sidney Zion, as the man who gave the documents to the newspaper. Zion did not disclose the source of his information and Ellsberg was not available for comment.

—Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in Decatur, Ga., that he had "never heard" of the secret study before reading of it in the Times and "did not know why" the Pentagon would prepare such an analysis without consulting him.

Trailer Attempt Rejected

Ronald E. Johnson, Sr., 212 East Morgan, who has been unable to get admittance into any of Sedalia's six trailer parks, apparently will not be permitted to place his trailer on a residential lot.

Mayor Jerry Jones issued a statement Friday in which he stated that Johnson's request for relief under the city's newly-enacted mobile home ordinance could not be approved. The ordinance does not permit single-width trailers to be located outside of trailer parks.

Jones' statement reads:

"Under our present city ordinance, we have no alternative but to uphold the provisions of it as we are charged with this responsibility under state statutes.

"Only if a section of our city ordinance, were repealed or amended, could the Council allow single-width mobile homes to be located on residential zoned property."

Johnson had originally taken his problem to the mayor, who urged him to try a local trailer park. Johnson was unable to find a park that would admit him, saying he was told by several managers that his 12 by 70-foot trailer was "too big."

Although Johnson, a Negro, said he thought discrimination was not involved in the refusals, Mayor Jones said he was convinced that the opposite was true.

The mayor said he doubted that Johnson's petition would be considered by the City Council. The council was handed the matter after the Zoning Board of Adjustment discovered that it did not have the power to grant an exception to the law.

Visiting in Sedalia

Famous Novelist's Career Began Simply

By P. C. THOMAS
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

If you want to learn creative writing "sit down and start writing." That's the advice of a novelist who dropped out of high school but later surprised himself by seeing three of his books on the best-selling list — all at the same time.

Patrick Dennis, author of "Auntie Mame," and 15 other novels, admits writing is "the hardest thing to do. I could think of a million excuses a day for not writing," he said in an interview Thursday at the C. W. Flower Co.

Dennis will be here until Sunday on an export-import business dealing with hand-crafted Mexican curios and paintings. He is in partnership with E. G. McGrath, a former Sedalian who lives in Acapulco, Mexico.

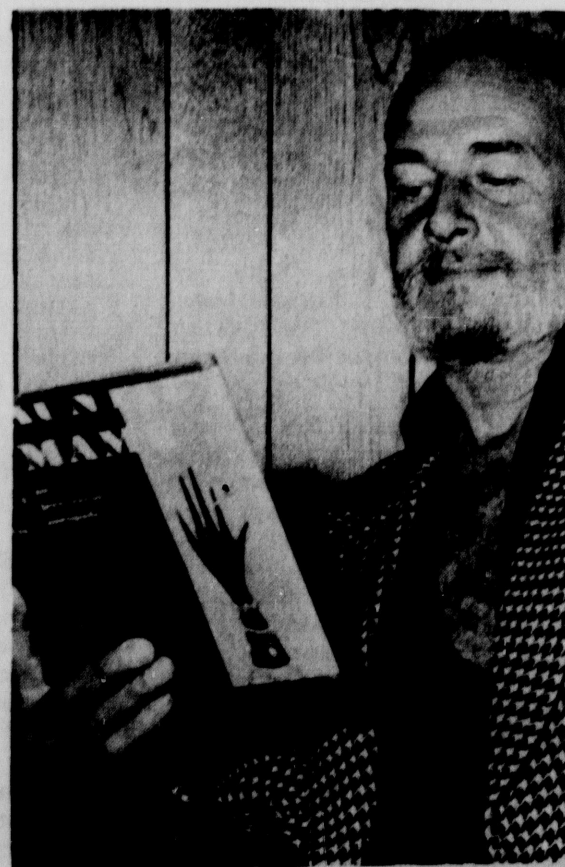

The novelist said he started the business because he got "sick of writing." However, the itch to write only seems to be growing, because Dennis published a novel, "Paradise," in March and is currently working on his 16th novel which "does not have a title yet."

Among Dennis' other books are "Little Me," "The Joyous Season," "First Lady," "Genius" and "Around the World With Auntie Mame."

Dennis said he also does quite a bit of public relations work and writes for Mexican television.

Patrick Dennis is the pseudonym of Edward Everett Tanner, who turned 50 last month. He said he chose the name "for the sake of privacy" — which "lasted only six months." "People used to call me Patrick, and I picked Dennis from the telephone book," he disclosed.

Slim, gray-bearded and soft spoken, Dennis in conversation, as in his novels, exhibits a flair for finding laughable situations most people are apt to miss. Like Jane Austen, the 19th century English novelist, he loves to elaborate on the social foibles of his times, and treats his characters with a gentle sarcasm. "Auntie Mame: An Irreverent Escapade" is a good example of this.

Patrick Dennis . . . keeps on writing

Dennis said he gets a chuckle out of watching people do the kind of things they do to gain social prestige and recognition. "To some people the head waiter knowing your name is like winning a Nobel prize. What trash!"

Asked what he considers, as a social satirist, the most amusing thing going on now, Dennis answered, "Social climbing. Social climbing is universal . . . social strata exist everywhere, and everyone wants to climb the social ladder."

"Money grubbing seems to be the main drive in many lives. It's silly," he observed.

He had mixed feelings about the younger generation. Talking about social climbing and trying to keep up with the Joneses, he commented: "The young people don't do it. But they're almost as funny going the other direction."

Dennis said he thinks several of the hippies are kids from wealthy homes who got tired of conforming. "They don't come from poor homes. They can't afford to if they do. Long hair, sandals — they are as much standardized as their fathers' gray suit and necktie."

Asked if any of his characters in "Auntie Mame" or any of his other works were modeled after real-life acquaintances, Dennis replied, "They're all fictitious, all made up . . . every word of it."

He said he finds real people "either too dull or too outrageous for fiction — mostly outrageous."

See Compromise Is Jobs Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic sources say the administration has dropped objections to a bill creating 150,000 to 200,000 public service jobs and is seeking a less expensive compromise.

But Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said Thursday he is not too hopeful Democrats, particularly in the House, will bend to avoid a possible presidential veto.

President Nixon vetoed a public service jobs bill last December, declaring much of the employment would be dead-end.

The new Congress immediately started work on a new measure, contending the jobs are needed because of continuing high unemployment, and money-strapped city and state governments' lack of workers in essential services.

The Senate passed a $1.75-billion bill on April 1. The House expanded it into a $5-billion program June 2.

Senate-House conferees learned Wednesday afternoon the White House might have a

"Keeping the Sabbath Day Holy" will be the theme for the Sunday service at the L.D.S. (Mormon) Church. Speakers for the 12:00 a.m. service will be Stephan Harris, Carolyn Harris, Joseph Harris and Joseph Furnell, Stake High counselor. Speakers for the 5:00 p.m. service will be Billie Ann Shuler, Gilbert Wilson, Peggy Shackles, Gleen Waggoner and Joseph Furnell.

In the Sunday morning worship service at the First Baptist Church pastor George T. Miller will preach on the subject, "Lord Send Me A Mountain."

A vacation bible school parents' night will be held at 7:10 p.m. Sunday and pupils' work will be displayed in the dining room.

Mel De Latorea, missionary to Brazil, will bring a message in the Sunday morning service at Stewart Avenue Church of Christ.

Sunday evening, Minister Jammie Paden will preach on the subject, "Keep Thyself."

"Be Not Afraid" will be the sermon topic of the pastor, the Rev. Eugene Trice, at the Epworth United Methodist Church Sunday morning.

change of mind, Senate sources said.

The sources said Undersecretary of Labor Laurence H. Silberman met with leaders of the conference delegations to see if they could work out a compromise acceptable to Nixon.

The conference called off a meeting scheduled Thursday in view of the negotiations, and set up a new one for next Tuesday.

Silberman talked with Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate group, and Javits, senior Republican member, as well as Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., head of the House delegation.

It was understood the administration asked the conferees to recommend the less costly Senate bill, along with the House's veterans-preference provision.

Javits said if such a compromise is made he would hope Nixon would sign it.

The Senate sources said the President might be planning to use the House provision to provide jobs for 370,000 unemployed Vietnam war veterans.

Moorhead said experts in constitutional law, legislators and news representatives will be called, along with White House officials and high-ranking witnesses from the Defense, Justice and State departments during open hearings scheduled to start next Wednesday.

Rep. Ogden R. Reid of New York, ranking Republican on the subcommittee and a former executive of the old New York Herald Tribune, said there is a "wide difference between national security and national embarrassment" and much material in the Times case apparently "relates to history, not to what could be called a security question."

Reid added: "I think you'll find a number of documents that should not properly now be classified." He said it is "clear Congress has been denied essential information" and there have been "clear assaults on the press and the right to know."

Before salmon leave salt water, they store up oils and fats for the journey to the spawning grounds, during which time they do not eat.

Miss Sue Thompson, a native of Warrensburg who is on a furlough after a five-year term as a Southern Baptist missionary in Nigeria, will be the guest speaker in the 10:30 a.m. and the 7:30 p.m. Sunday services at Broadway Baptist Church, 2119 East Broadway. She will show slides of her missionary work in the evening.

Baptist Church Building Work Is Progressing

A whirlwind, four-day church bond program in April enabled the Calvary Baptist Church, 16th and Quincy, to begin work last week on a $120,300 addition to the current educational facilities of the church.

Pastor F. Charles Hendrickson said that work on the foundation began last week. The anticipated date of completion of the addition will be around Christmas, he said.

Pastor Hendrickson said the new addition will expand the current educational facilities at the church by about 18 classrooms. Included in the new plans will be a probable expansion of the church's kindergarten program that now serves 46 to 50 children and has two teachers.

Hendrickson said that classes now are held in the mornings only. He said with the new space the classes might be extended to afternoon sessions as well.

Calvary Baptist is one of several churches operating kindergartens in Sedalia. The Sedalia public school system does not operate kindergartens at this time.

Hendrickson indicated that crowded conditions necessitated the expansion. "For a number of years, we have been at the saturation point," he said.

The facility is being built by the Gentry Patterson Construction Co., 2700 South Kentucky.

First Christian To Honor Dads

The Rev. Robert Magee, pastor, will bring a message on the topic "Father Forgets."

Sedalians To Attend Presbyterian Synod

Robert Bottoms, seminary intern at Broadway Presbyterian Church, and the church's elder delegate, Donald G. Callis, 3000 Skyline Dr., will attend the annual meeting of the denomination's synod Monday and Tuesday at Westminster College, Fulton.

Pastor's Wife Describes Persecution In Russia

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — She is a small woman with flashing blue eyes, a radiant smile and memories of intimidation, arrests and prison. Out of it, she says, she brings "the cry of brethren suffering for their faith in Communist countries."

"Americans simply don't know what is happening there," says Sabrina Wurmbrand, who now helps recruit and organize secret couriers operating in Soviet areas to provide religious materials and aid to victimized families.

"Hundreds of thousands of Christians and Jews are in prison and slave labor camps, separated from their families for years and years, their children left to wander the streets without care," she says.

Mrs. Wurmbrand, 58, and her husband, the Rev. Richard Wurmbrand, 62, came to this country four years ago from Romania, after he was released from 15 years in prison, and set up their unusual organization.

Called "Jesus to the Communist World Inc.," it has headquarters in Glendale, Calif., branch representatives in 27 countries and carries on an extensive program of short-wave broadcasts and smuggling missions into the Soviet orbit.

They also compile information on the religious situation there from letters, documents and first hand reports from families of prisoners and persons newly released from prison.

From those sources, Mrs. Wurmbrand says an estimated one million Christians and Jews are in prison in the Soviet Union, and at least 30,000 are in prison for religious reasons in Communist China.

She relates her own experiences under Soviet rule in a new book, "The Pastor's Wife," published by the John Day Co. She herself was in prison three years and underwent various other persecution during the longer term served by her husband.

"These same things are going on today in Communist countries," she said in an interview. "It is not easy. Yet only in prison do you learn what it really means to have faith and hope."

Mrs. Wurmbrand and her husband, both Jewish converts to Christianity and now members of the American Lutheran Church, were part of what has become known as the "underground church" in the Soviet areas.

It involves actively evangelizing Christians who distribute literature, put up posters in public places and hold meetings of prayer, teaching and Bible study, and who often run into trouble with Soviet authorities.

While the Soviet Union claims it protects religious liberty, various laws bar active evangelizing efforts or religious classes for the young.

The two largest, officially condoned denominations, the Russian Orthodox Church with an estimated 50 million members, and the 500,000-member Baptist Union of Russia, hold worship services, and generally support the government.

She estimates there are five million Baptists, 45 million Orthodox and thousands of Catholics in the underground movement.

"Christ has not left the battlefield," she said. "He will be the victor and there are many signs of His winning today."

Secrecy Policy Will Get Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon-papers dispute has spurred plans for what the House government information subcommittee chairman calls "a major congressional investigation" of U.S. document-secrecy policies.

Material involved in the argument over The New York Times' publication of a secret governmental study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam will be sought from the Nixon administration for private scrutiny to determine why it was classified, the panel's leader said Thursday.

Subcommittee Chairman William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., telling reporters he hopes for administration testimony "in totally open hearings," said if necessary the congressmen could use a long-standing law to obtain the material.

That law, he added, requires every executive department to turn over such information at the request of seven members of the House Government Operations Committee. The information subcommittee is part of that panel, and has several safes in which it stores the classified documents it receives.

Surprising Support For Times' Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Times has picked up some surprising support in Congress in its fight with the Nixon administration over publication of a secret Pentagon study of American involvement in the Vietnam war.

The government's effort to stop the paper from continuing its series about the highly classified documents brought on criticism from liberals — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, among others.

But an element of surprise was entered by Carl B. Curtis, a Nebraska Republican who has been one of President Nixon's staunch Senate backers, particularly on Vietnam and other national security matters.

"The freedom of the press to publish information about the government of the nation, and the decisions of this government, is one of our most precious freedoms," he said Thursday.

Curtis didn't make a direct attack on the administration effort to obtain a court order against continuation of the Times series, but he said there is a "very serious fault" in the government's approach to classifying documents.

"Judging by what I have read and heard about these Vietnam war documents," Curtis told the Senate, "the government tends to stamp a 'secret' or 'top secret' classification on too many documents and too much information in an attempt to hide it from the public."

The documents in the study were classified either secret or top secret when they were assembled under direction of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara during the Johnson administration.

Versailles Farmer Killed

(Democrat-Capital Service)

VERSAILLES — A 53-year-old Morgan County farmer, Jed Owens, was crushed to death early Thursday evening when the tractor he was driving overturned in the driveway of his home, Route 3, Versailles, pinning him and an eight-year-old Versailles boy beneath it.

Brought to Sedalia by an ambulance from Scrivner Funeral Home, Versailles, the boy, Rickie Carver, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Carver, was admitted to Bothwell Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and observation. He was released Friday morning.

Sheriff's Department authorities said the tractor struck a concrete post at the intersection of the driveway and the road after rounding a curve. The vehicle and riders were thrown into the driveway. The boy was trapped under the tractor about 40 minutes before a wrecker lifted the machine off him and Owens.

Born Dec. 7, 1917 at Greenbriar, Owens was the son of the late James W. and Minnie Owens. He was married to Darlene Higgins June 28, 1943.

Besides his wife, survivors include two brothers, Lewis Owens, Poplar Bluff, and Ervin Owens, St. Louis; four sisters, Miss Anna Owens and Mrs. Oma Hawk, both of Advance; Christine Owens, St. Louis and Mrs. Jamie Cochran of Salem, Wis.

Owens' body was taken to Kidwell Funeral Home, Versailles, where services will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, the Rev. P. H. Wilbanks and the Rev. Leroy Erzinger officiating. Burial will be in Stover Cemetery.

and writing, the novelist said he thinks there is "much more liberty now than before." "You could hardly say 'damn' a few years ago. Then they had pornography stuff and now they're getting tired of that. I'm tired of it, too. After you've seen it all and done it all, you don't want to read about it. There isn't much you can say."

He said the public "is tired of being shocked, because you can't shock them any more." Asked which authors influenced him most, Dennis replied, "Mostly ladies of letters, more than men." Then pausing to think, he added, "Nobody really. Nobody has ever influenced me ... I don't think."

Referring to his best-sellers, Dennis laughed and commented, "I was terribly surprised when I found out my books were on the list. I still don't know why anybody reads them."

He said he turned to creative writing after he got tired of ghost writing, editing and rewriting for other people.

Dennis said he does not believe in espousing any particular cause or philosophy through his creative writing. "I haven't got one," he admitted, adding: "I'd sit down and write just the opposite of what I wrote earlier ... writing to me is a matter of technique."

Referring to literary critics and reviewers, Dennis said, "I don't pay much attention to them. Unless there is something worthwhile, you never learn from them. There aren't very many critics around any longer."

"I used to be a drama critic for 'The New Republic' and, oh, how I hated it," he recalled. "I know why so many drama critics drink so much. They don't have to see the play quite clearly ..."

Dennis is staying with the John J. Kniest family, 706 West Fifth.

Scattered Outbreaks Continue

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen clashed with North Vietnamese troops 43 miles east of Saigon today, while nine miles southeast of the capital South Vietnamese militiamen uncovered a stockpile of enemy munitions.

Details of the American action east of Saigon were not known, but the AirCav troops in that jungle area have been under fire all week.

On Monday the North Vietnamese ambushed a column, killing four U.S. troops and wounding eight. Another air cavalryman was killed and six were wounded Thursday when their unit came on an enemy bunker complex and the North Vietnamese opened fire. Later more Americans were wounded by a 10-round mortar barrage.

Helicopter gunships swooped down on the bunkers, firing rockets, and seven North Vietnamese were reported killed.

The munitions cache was found during sweep operations around Saigon to minimize chances of an attack during the armed forces day parade Saturday. In the stockpile were 15 Soviet rifles, 20 hand grenades, 20 blasting caps and 1,500 rounds of small arms ammunition.

In the northern part of the country just below the demilitarized zone, the North Vietnamese followed up their heavy attack Thursday near Firebase Sarge with an 81-round barrage of rockets and mortars fired into the artillery base. The South Vietnamese Command said casualties were light.

U.S. B52 bombers made more heavy strikes in the region, dropping 60 tons of bombs on bunker complexes and storage sites. Some of the raids were less than two miles from the base.

Sarge, a former U.S. Marine outpost, is one of the two westernmost South Vietnamese bases in the region just below the DMZ. About 400 North Vietnamese attacked about half that number of South Vietnamese outside the base early Thursday but were finally driven back after America jets and helicopters and ground reinforcements joined in the battle.

In a revised casualty report, South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 17 of the North Vietnamese were killed in the battle. Informal sources said 13 South Vietnamese were killed and 15 were wounded.

Ann Landers

Daughter Needs A New Set of Values

Dear Ann Landers: I was married young and we had two daughters within 14 months. Soon after the second girl was born, my husband became involved with other women. I stayed with him for five years — blaming myself, thinking if I were a good wife he would not be running around. One day I returned early from an out-of-town trip and caught him in our very own bedroom with another woman. I decided he was rotten to the core and I filed for divorce the following week. (Our daughters were then six and seven.)

I went to work and raised the girls with no financial help. It wasn't easy but we managed. My daughters never knew why I divorced their father. I always spoke well of him and let him take them for vacations whenever he asked.

Now the shocker: The oldest girl is being married in a few months. Her father is giving her a beautiful church wedding. I am not allowed to be present. Those are his orders. I am so hurt I cannot describe the agony. Of course I could never give her the kind of wedding her father can give her, but I want more than anything in the world to be there. Unless I promise to stay away from the church her father will withdraw his offer. What do you think of a man like that? — Grieving Mom.

Dear Mom: Never mind about him. What's with your daughter that she would agree to such outrageous terms? Any girl who attaches more importance to a fancy wedding than to having her mother present is a mighty weird study.

Dear Ann Landers: My secretary has a nickname which her colleagues use behind her back. It fits her to a "T." She is called "Motor Mouth." This woman chews gum at the rate of 5,000 R. P. M.

The crackling and popping is bad enough but when she talks and chews, it drives me wild. Occasionally she laughs with her mouth wide open and I can see that huge wad of gum — it's got to be three sticks, a most unappetizing sight.

Is there a way to let "Motor Mouth" know that her gum chewing bothers me — without telling her? I don't want to get that personal. Thank you. — Rope's End.

Dear Rope: Hand "Motor Mouth" this column. Tell her that on occasion you see yourself in the letters (everyone does) and ask if she saw herself today.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an 11-year-old girl. Please don't throw this letter away just because it is a kid problem. I have two girl friends. I like them both but they don't like each other. When I am with Polly (made up name), she talks about Molly (also made up name.) It makes me feel two-faced when I listen. Both Polly and Molly have asked me to be their best friend. (Polly wants me to put it in writing, like a pledge.) When I refused to do it she got mad.

I've tried to get them to like each other but it's no use. Yesterday Polly told me if I am friendly with Molly she is through with me. What should I do? — Between The Devil and The Deep Blue Sea.

Dear B: Polly sounds as if she is the "Devil" so my advice is take the deep blue sea. No friend has the right to impose such a choice. Such a demand, should, in my opinion, eliminate the person who makes it.

Incidentally, this is not a "kid" problem. Many adults are victimized in the same manner. This advice is for them, too.

Congress Contends Drug War Too Late

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plan to spend $155 million more on federal anti-drug programs has come under congressional attack as too little, too late or old.

Nonetheless, there was overwhelming praise on Capitol Hill for the sense of urgency Nixon placed on meeting the drug-abuse problem by his emphasis on addict education and rehabilitation.

"The money the President asked for wouldn't begin to take care of New York City alone," said Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman of the House Select Committee on Crime. "Hundreds of millions of dollars at least are required."

But Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, chairman of the Senate narcotics subcommittee, said: "Much more attention is given to the reclamation of the drug user himself than in previous administration proposals which generally concentrated much more on trying to cut off the supply of dangerous drugs than in trying to control the demand for them."

Hughes said it remains to be seen if the Justice Department will continue its dominant role in drug control rather than professionals in the health field.

In his message to Congress, Nixon said $105 million of the $155 million would go for treatment and rehabilitation. With the additional funds the total government spending on anti-drug plans would total $370 million in fiscal 1972.

Nixon said he wanted to "tighten the noose around the necks of the drug peddlers and thereby loosen the noose around the necks of drug users."

Nixon named Dr. Jerome H. Jaffe, 37, to head the new special action office overseeing the drug abuse program. Jaffe now directs the Illinois drug abuse program and helped pioneer development of methadone as a substitute for heroin addiction.

Nixon said the new office would set policy and oversee all federal research on fighting drug addiction.

Nixon said he was ordering an immediate testing and rehabilitation program in Vietnam where an estimated 30,000 GIs are addicts. He also asked for legislation allowing the military to hold on active duty any GI believed hooked on drugs.

Long Window Shade Will Last Longer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I have discovered it is more economical to buy a seven-foot long window shade when a six-foot one is needed. The bottoms on shades wear quickly and show soil which in time does not clean off. I just cut off the shade, rehem and it looks like new again. When the bottom of the shade is worn, soiled and past using I simply invert it, end for end. This places the soiled part in the rolled section where it does not show and I have a nice-looking shade again. This really stretches the life of those shades that have become so expensive. — BERTHA

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I wish someone would tell me how to remove the worn silver from the back of an old mirror. I would like to use this as a simple plate glass top over my scratched coffee table top with snapshots of the children between them. The mirror is huge and would have to be cut down so I would also appreciate suggestions concerning that. — MRS. L. V. B.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns magazines whose address labels do not tell when the subscription is going to run out. Often a special offer is received from a publisher to extend the subscription at a very attractive price and it would be nice to see at a glance when the old one will expire instead of looking at a lot of numbers and letters that only magazine employees can figure out. — MRS. W. T. H.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. M. K. S. may find it easier to remove watercolor paint from her children's clothes if she would put liquid detergent on the spots as soon as possible. Some fabrics do require a few washings before it all comes out. — PAULINE

DEAR POLLY — Please tell Mrs. M. K. S. that she could soak her children's watercolor paint stained clothing overnight in enough cold water plus 1/4- to 1/2-cup automatic dishwashing powder to completely cover. Drain and wash the next day in a cold-water detergent with cold water and the stains should be out. I do the same with mildew stains but use hot water for the soaking and cold water for the washing. Hope this works as well for Mrs. M. K. S. as it does for me. — MRS. H. W.

In Medina Case

Daniel Will Be Witness

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Aubrey Daniel, the Army prosecutor who obtained a murder conviction against Lt. William L. Calley Jr., will be called to testify on whether improper command influence was exerted in bringing Capt. Ernest Medina to trial.

Medina, 34, of Montrose, Colo., is charged with the slaying of 102 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai. Calley was convicted of 22 murders at My Lai.

At a pretrial hearing for Medina Wednesday, Col. Kenneth Howard, the military judge, ruled that the command influence question is such a vital issue that there is no point in proceeding until it has been settled.

He ruled that Daniel and six other witnesses must testify in a separate hearing, which begins Monday, on whether Medina was brought to trial as a result of improper command influence.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey is seeking dismissal of the charges against Medina on grounds that improper influence was exerted.

Bailey charged in the first of 18 motions Wednesday that Daniel wanted to call Medina as a witness in the Calley case but was overruled by a written order forbidding him to put Medina on the stand.

Bailey said Daniel would be questioned about such orders. Medina did testify, but at the request of the jury and not as a prosecution or defense witness.

Daniel, 29, now a civilian attorney in Washington, D.C., was contacted by telephone at Portsmouth, Va., where he and his wife are visiting friends.

Daniel said he did not know of the judge's ruling. "If I'm subpoenaed, of course, I'll come," he said. He declined further comment.

The judge also ordered Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, commanding general of the 3rd Army at Ft. McPherson, three colonels, a retired colonel and a sergeant who served with the 2nd Platoon in Medina's company at My Lai to testify.

Bailey charged that the high-ranking officers "conspired" to bring Medina to trial through "improper, unethical and illegal conduct."

Bailey also claimed that Medina's case was prejudiced in the trial of Sgt. Charles Hutto, who was acquitted on charges in the My Lai incident.

Hutto, like Calley, had contended that civilians were killed on orders from Medina. Bailey said Medina was never allowed to dispute that charge in Hutto's trial.

Bailey said Maj. William Eckhardt, prosecutor in the Medina case and an assistant prosecutor in Hutto's case, and Col. Wilson Freeman, staff judge advocate at Ft. McPherson, agreed "that a conviction of Sgt. Hutto would be forfeited to bolster the prosecution of Capt. Medina even though the charges against him had not yet been referred to trial."

Ed Long Before The IRS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Edward V. Long, a former U.S. Senator from Missouri, was under federal court order today to answer questions put to him by the Internal Revenue Service regarding legal fees he received from St. Louis attorney, Morris Shenker.

Judge James H. Meredith ordered the former Missouri senator Thursday to provide answers within 30 days to 70 of the 84 questions the IRS asked him.

Long contended that answering would violate the confidential relationship between an attorney and his client.

Judge Meredith said Long would not be required to answer 14 questions dealing with matters he discussed with clients.

The government has not approved $148,000 in deductions claimed by Shenker on his tax returns for 1964 through 1968 as fees paid to Long when he was in the Senate.

The questions relate to fees paid by Shenker to Long for legal services to five clients.

The IRS wants to know whether Long performed legal services in the purchase and sale of the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas before or after his appointment to the Senate.

Other questions Long was directed to answer involve the discussion of fees with clients, the percentage Long received from money paid to Shenker, who determined the percentages and the factors that determined them.

Top Aides Of LBJ Misled On War

By CARL T. ROWAN
WASHINGTON — President Lyndon B. Johnson and a handful of intimates were misusing the National Security Council as an approval "cover" for clandestine war operations that were never discussed in Security Council meetings.

Rowan

Johnson asked top aides to approve retaliatory bombing raids on North Vietnam even while keeping it secret from those aides that the United States was provoking the Communists into the acts against which we were retaliating.

This critical point has not yet been made clear in The New York Times articles that have made it appallingly obvious that the Johnson administration misled the public and duped the Congress into giving early support to U.S. military intervention in Vietnam.

On Feb. 7, 1965, a Security Council meeting was called after eight American servicemen were killed and 62 wounded in a Viet Cong guerrilla raid on Pleiku. The Security Council was asked to approve "retaliatory" raids on North Vietnamese targets despite the added risks flowing out of the fact that Soviet Prime Minister Alexei Kosygin was in Hanoi.

The council did "approve" such raids, which were the beginning of round-the-clock bombings of North Vietnam, although months of U.S.-inspired commando raids, mercenary bombings, sabotage, and other assaults against North Vietnam under "Plan 34A" had not been revealed to:

1. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, a statutory member of the National Security Council.

2. Edward A. McDermott, director of the Office of Emergency Planning and also a statutory member of the council, or to his successor.

3. This reporter, who was then director of the U.S. Information Agency, and who sat on the Security Council at the invitation of the President.

There were others present who were asked by the President to say yea or nay on the bombing raids (the Security Council is advisory only, the President alone making decisions), but who were being asked to endorse grave actions without being given all the facts.

Only intuition, suspicion, and a piecing together of vague references in certain "top secret" and "no distribution" telegrams enabled some who sat on the council to know that there was a "Plan 34A."

"When I read '34A' I thought they were talking about a hotel room," Humphrey told me. "I swear I'd never heard of it until I read it in the Times. Those papers revealed by the Times were as secret to me as they were to the general public."

Certain highly classified data is made known to government officials only on a "need to know" basis, and very clearly President Johnson or his top advisers decided that the vice president and others in those Security Council meetings did not have a "need to know."

The recent Times revelations have made it clear to people holding topmost jobs in the Johnson administration that they were being used as a "cover" for clandestine operations planned and ordered by the President and a handful of intimate advisers.

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara,

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, CIA Director John McCone, Presidential Adviser McGeorge Bundy, and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, sometime-Presidential-adviser and sometime-ambassador-to-Saigon, were the key men calling the signals that Johnson asked the Security Council to endorse.

The Tonkin Gulf episode, five months before the Pleiku raid, was a similar case of misuse of the National Security Council. Some members of the council knew of the U.S. Desoto patrol, but were left to believe that it was just an innocent surveillance operation that was attacked wantonly by the North Vietnamese.

The full Security Council never was told that the allies had carried out two destructive 34A raids against North Vietnam only hours before North Vietnamese torpedo boats attacked the destroyers Maddox and Turner Joy. Nor was the Congress told this before it voted, 88 to 2 in the Senate and 416 to 0 in the House, for a Gulf of Tonkin resolution that broadened the President's war-making powers.

These are facts that the public, the courts, the Justice Department, the White House, and everyone else ought to ponder before they get too busy harassing and hounding The New York Times, trying to halt the flow of information that the people should have had years ago.

The Times has revealed things that certainly are embarrassing to the United States internationally and damning of some individuals domestically. But Defense Secretary Melvin Laird must face the fact that embarrassment is not the same as "damaging to national security."

This tragic episode tells us that political leaders who try to dupe the public and the Congress get burned — and that the truth comes out anyhow.

It also tells us that a passion for secrecy, which Johnson had, is dangerous in a democracy. When a President limits great decisions on war and peace to a small clique of advisers, callously using others as a cover, he is more likely to lead the country into trouble.

Instead of trying to curb the Times' freedom to continue what has been a monumental public service, the Nixon administration would better devote its time to figuring out how it can avoid the errors that brought tragedy to Lyndon Johnson.

No Letup Is Seen In Housing Dispute

Recent revelations in this newspaper, followed by a meeting at City Hall Wednesday, have brought to light the full extent of the dispute between various agencies and interests that will further delay Sedalia's public housing program—if indeed it is ever approved at all.

The principals in the controversy are AMCON, International, the Memphis-based contractor for the units, and the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The latter maintains that the local units do not measure up to HUD standards in terms of quality, and even safety. AMCON, in reply, claims that they do meet the requirements of "decent, safe and sanitary" housing set up by HUD for the type units that have been built here.

All of this raises the question of why, since the plans for the Sedalia units were approved by HUD's Fort Worth, Tex., office before construction ever began, that the discrepancies listed by HUD were not noted at that time.

Further complicating the problem is the fact that the HUD regional office has since been shifted to Kansas City, with a corresponding high turnover in personnel. Continuity, therefore, has not been what it should be in regard to the Sedalia project.

No one wants to see sub-standard housing accepted by the Sedalia Housing Authority, and if major discrepancies do exist, they should be cleaned up.

At the same time, if HUD is now applying unrealistic standards to a project that was originally approved because it met the three-fold test (decent, safe, sanitary) prescribed for the Section 23 program, then this is equally wrong.

The main consideration to keep in mind is that there are scores of families in Sedalia that are anxiously awaiting the go-ahead to move into these units, families that live in such deplorable or marginal conditions that almost ANYTHING would be an improvement.

The need for public housing still exists in Sedalia, and is growing greater by the month. It would be tragic at this point to see so much time, effort, work, money and humanitarian effort go down the drain.

"If I let them print the truth about you, I'd be their next victim."

Did U.S. Aircraft Massacre Village?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — We have received troubling reports that Air Force jets, guided by faulty intelligence, have caused 10-second massacres in Vietnam more devastating than what happened at My Lai.

Villages of friendly Montagnard tribesmen, it's rumored, have been wiped out by mistake. The stories are difficult to verify, because the villages are remote and the Montagnards bear their sorrows in silence.

We have spent several weeks, for example, trying to find out what happened to a straw-hut village in the Song Re river valley in the central highlands.

On Aug. 9, 1970, the village was ripped apart by anti-personnel bombs dropped by screaming Air Force Phantom jets. Several F4 Phantoms flashed over the village around 8 or 9 a.m.

They laid down "maximum suppressive fire" — a saturation pattern of cluster bombs — intended to kill any Viet Cong who might be lurking in the area. This was supposed to clear the way for three slow C-123 spray planes to dust the rice paddies with defoliants.

A 100 per cent pattern — spacing the cluster bombs, in other words, so the entire area is covered by flying shrapnel — is supposed to be enough to kill anyone standing who isn't protected by heavy armor or a brick wall. The Phantoms used a 300 per cent pattern over Song Re.

This triple-strength saturation would easily have ripped and riddled the frail straw walls of the native hootches, killing or maiming nearly everyone.

Moments after the Phantoms had dropped their deadly protective barrage, the three C-123s lumbered over the valley, spraying an arsenic compound called Agent Blue to destroy the terraced rice paddies below.

Lt. Col. Gary L. Gallier, the Army Chemical Corps officer who approved what he called this "model food destruction mission," maintains there were only a handful of Viet Cong in the area.

The U.S. Command in Saigon, in a memo we have obtained, also says it "believes" no "friendly" civilians were in the Song Re river valley.

Yet military maps, prepared in 1965, clearly show a Montagnard village in the valley. Air photos taken two weeks after the spraying show about 900 hootches.

Gallier now claims that the hootches were abandoned and that "VC production units" slipped into the valley at night to plant and tend some 2,000 acres of rice.

But Dr. Matthew S. Meselson and Dr. John D. Constable, both of Harvard, who were flown over the valley by Gallier on a herbicide assessment mission, say that Gallier told them there were no huts below.

And Dr. Gerald Hickey, an anthropologist with the RAND Corporation, who has worked in Vietnam for years, says the idea of nocturnal farming is ridiculous.

"The VC can dun the villagers for food or the people give it voluntarily, so why would the VC grow anything at night? Why would they grow anything at all?" asked Hickey.

The military also claims that because the C-123 spray planes were hit three times on the August mission and 37 times on an April mission, the inhabitants of the valley "are largely enemy forces."

Contradicts Hickey: "Everyone in the highlands knows that it is an old VC tactic to enter the villages and shoot at U.S. planes and helicopters in the hope that the Americans will bomb or strafe the villages and, thereby, alienate the people."

Sources familiar with the area believe the village was occupied by friendly Montagnards, including women, children and the aged, who would have been massacred by the Aug. 9 raid.

These sources also say the rice paddies were cultivated by the tribesmen, not the Viet Cong. No doubt the Viet Cong, who infest the area, frequently entered the village and demanded rice. But most of the crop, it is believed, was used to feed the villagers.

The Army's own field manual of land warfare declares that herbicides should be used only when crops are intended solely for consumption by enemy forces. The bombing and spraying of civilian food crops, whether the civilians are friendly or unfriendly, violates the 1907 Hague Convention which the U.S. has ratified.

Colonel Gallier insists, however, that "if I had known or even suspected that there were people in this valley, I would have told the Air Force to cancel."

Footnote: We placed several telephone calls to Vietnam in an attempt to reach intelligence officers and pilots who had participated in the Song Re raid. However, we were able to talk only to second-hand sources who said the pilots were told there were no native hootches in the valley. When they spotted hootches on their bombing run, according to these sources, the pilots tried to avoid them. Missionaries also offered to hike to the valley to verify for us what happened at Song Re. But we were warned that going through Viet Cong country would be too dangerous.

Shortly before U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker left Vietnam to confer in Washington with President Nixon, he sent a diplomatic "aide-memoire" to South Vietnamese President Thieu.

Bunker privately told Thieu he must dry up the heroin market which is addicting tens of thousands of American GIs in Vietnam.

Personal Slants

By DOUG KNEIBERT

In an attempt to cut through the brass curtain that has dropped around plans for the Safeguard project here, I recently put in a person-to-person call to Gen. Buck Blastoff, chief of the Army's Sedalia office of the Safeguard command.

Here is a transcript of the conversation in question and answer form:

Q — General Blastoff, how soon will Safeguard be constructed here?

A — That's up to the boys in Helsinki. Although the money has been appropriated, everything is being held up on the chance that an ABM treaty can be reached with the Russians.

Q — When will you and your staff get down for a first-hand inspection of the situation?

A — I am afraid that is impossible. Your airport has been ruled off limits to military personnel because of the cross-wind problem.

Q — But we passed a $790,000 bond issue to solve that three years ago.

A — Yes, but because of the cross-winds you don't qualify in terms of the number of takeoffs and landings to get the matching funds. They are being withheld by the FAA until you qualify.

Q — But how can we qualify if we can't improve the airport to get more planes to qualify?

A — You'll have to take that up with the FAA.

Q — How many personnel would you expect to move into this area if Safeguard gets the OK?

A — There's a problem on that now, most of the workers don't want to move there.

Q — Why not?

A — They have found out that your federal school aid funds have been frozen at current levels until this desegregation thing is settled. They are worried about overtaxing the school system under those conditions.

Q — Well could you give us some indication about the number of people anyway, since so we can insure adequate housing?

A — That's another problem. Since we have found out that the Department of Housing and Urban Development is holding up funds for your low-rent public housing, there's a real question about where our people would live. Then there is the sewer problem.

Q — What do you mean?

A — The half million dollars Sedalia passed eight years ago for sewer improvements have not been matched in federal funds because the state legislature has drug its feet. Under those conditions we don't know what a large influx of people would do to your system.

Q — Tell me, General, is there ANY federal program that Sedalia has applied for that looks like it will go through?

A — Not that I know of. But there is one bright spot. The Congress has approved $25,000 a year to hire a G-3 just to handle the paperwork between Sedalia and Washington, and the chances look good for an early approval on that one.

The Arrow Rock Lyceum Repertory Theater is set to begin its 11th season with a matinee performance June 27 of Thornton Wilder's comedy, "The Matchmaker." The record-smashing musical "Hello Dolly" was adapted from the play.

Two young Sedalia Thespians, Mike Fiene and Terry Janney, will have roles in the play. Fiene, who is a salaried member of the Lyceum troupe this year, also will play Abram in another Lyceum production this season, "Squaring the Circle." Miss Janney is an apprentice.

Other plays that will be staged this season are "Blithe Spirit," "The Scarecrow," "The Admirable Crichton" and "The Innocents." The latter is an adaptation of Henry James' chilling suspense story, "The Turn of the Screw." If you haven't tried that one on a stormy night in bed — don't.

Informer Can't Be Found

NEW YORK (AP) — Friends and relatives have provided no clues to the whereabouts of Daniel Ellsberg, who has been named by a former New York Times staffer as the man who leaked the secret Pentagon study on the Vietnam war to the Times.

Ellsberg, a research fellow at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was last reported seen in his office Wednesday, hours before Sidney Zion, the former Times newsman, named him during a New York radio interview on station WMCA.

Zion said he obtained the information that Ellsberg gave the 47-volume study and other documents to Times reporter Neil Sheehan from "very impeccable" sources, but he declined to name them. He said Ellsberg gained access to the report when he was employed by the Rand Corporation.

There were also these developments:

—The Times, while declining to comment on Zion's report, said today it had learned the FBI was concentrating its investigation of the leak on Ellsberg as early as Monday.

—The New York Daily News quoted government sources in today's edition as saying Ellsberg was "one of several persons" suspected of leaking the material. At least two other publications were offered the documents in recent weeks but turned them down, the News added.

—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch quoted a "senior official of the executive branch" Thursday as saying the investigation of the leak was "centering" on Ellsberg.

In Detroit, Harry Ellsberg, the missing man's father, said he had not seen his son since last August and didn't know where he is. But he assumed Daniel was on vacation.

He described his son, a former Marine and Harvard graduate, as a man who had become a vigorous opponent of the war since his experience in Vietnam.

"He's mentioned in his letters that there is an awful lot of stuff on record in the Pentagon that will come out some day," the father said.

The 40-year-old Ellsberg was one of former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's "whiz kids" at the Pentagon and served in the U.S. embassy in Saigon.

After returning to the United States, in 1967 he joined the Rand Corp., a "think tank" that did work for the Pentagon and had copies of the 47-volume study.

A reporter spoke with Ellsberg Wednesday, the Times said, and he acknowledged working on the study but would not discuss his role in it.

"I'm glad the stuff is out," Ellsberg was quoted as saying. "I think it's a good thing for the country. Congress is entitled to get it and apparently has been unable to get it."

Dr. Everett E. Hagen, director of MIT's Center for International Studies, where Ellsberg was a research associate, said Thursday: "He was in here yesterday. Where he is today I have no idea."

Paula B. Cronin, who said she and her husband had been friends of Ellsberg's since 1957, said she didn't know if Ellsberg had leaked the study.

Mrs. Cronin said Ellsberg's second wife, the former Patricia Marx of New York City, could be partially credited with transforming Ellsberg from a hawk to a committed dove.

"He's very quick to give her the credit for changing his views," Mrs. Cronin added.

She said Ellsberg had at one time been a friend of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign policy adviser and former Harvard faculty member.

Meanwhile, the man who started the Ellsberg phase of the story was fending off FBI agents who wanted to know more and saying his vanity was responsible for his involvement.

In 1967, Daniel Ellsberg wrote a summary of his experience for the 15th anniversary report of his Harvard class. He was in a Bangkok nursing home at the time, recovering from hepatitis he had contracted in Vietnam.

Ellsberg declared that he felt a "sense of responsibility for having finally urged (however marginal my impact) U.S. troop commitment in the spring of 1965."

He told of working as a consultant in 1961-63 for the White House, the Central Intelligence Agency, and the Departments of State and Defense, primarily on the Cuban missile crisis.

In 1964, he became a special assistant to John McNaughton, the assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs.

After trying to explain government policy at college teach-ins before critical students, Ellsberg went to Vietnam in 1965, he said.

"I've learned fully as much as I hoped and learned to care deeply for this tortured country," Ellsberg wrote. "Vietnam, whose countryside, I think, is the most beautiful in the world, a fact that rarely seems to be mentioned, the children, its people and their future."

"But much of the knowledge is painful. I don't seem to have the temperament of a pathologist."

Royals Rolling Again On Drago's Shutout

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Dick Drago of the Kansas City Royals thinks he may become a hot weather pitcher after all.

The smooth right-hander became the first Royals hurler to pitch two successive shutouts every Thursday night when he stopped the California Angels 5-0 on six hits. He did it in 88-degree heat.

The victory was Drago's seventh against two defeats and the 13th in 16 games for the Royals, who trail the Oakland Athletics by six games in the American League West.

Drago, guzzling one bottle of red soda pop after another, said he's really not a hot weather pitcher "but I've been fielding ground balls extra on my off days to try to build up resistance to the heat."

He shut out Boston on eight hits last Saturday in much the same manner he beat the Angels.

"I've always pitched away before this season," he said, "but that jammer is a good pitcher. Of course, they get those scratch hits off of it... three tonight and three last time. But it gets a lot of outs, too."

Royals Manager Bob Lemon described Drago as "a darned good pitcher. And he's a pitcher—not a thrower."

"What did he walk? Two? Then he was wild. He only walks one each seven innings. And he challenges people."

Cookie Rojas, Kansas City second baseman, got the 1000th hit of his career in the seventh inning off reliever Mel Queen. Rojas' first hit came in 1963 off Sandy Koufax.

Rojas also figured in the Royals' three-run uprising against Angels' starter Rudy May, 3-5, who came off the disabled list only a few days ago.

Paul Schaal's first inning single, his first of three, started the rally with nobody out. Rojas singled, and Amos Otis doubled to score Schaal. Rojas scored on Chuck Harrison's grounder. The Royals made it 3-0 on a single by Lou Piniella.

Rich Severson walked in the fourth, went to second on Drago's sacrifice and scored on Schaal's single. The Royals added their last tally in the seventh. With one out, Rojas singled, went to third on Otis' single and scored on a wild pitch by Queen.

Mike O'Connor Takes Mid-Mo Softball Lead

Mike O'Connors has taken over the league lead in the Mid-Missouri Softball Association.

O'Connors swept a doubleheader from Clinton B-L Electric, who was previously undefeated in loop play with a 9-0 mark.

With the wins, O'Connors now stands at 13-1 in league action, while B-L slipped to 9-2.

John Fiene and Ed Drees combined to pitch two-hitters and a one-hitter respectively and defeated B-L at Housel Park by scores of 5-1 and 9-0.

Tom Hunter smacked a home run for O'Connors in the opening contest off losing pitcher John Drake.

Fiene was touched only by shortstop Lenny Scott and catcher Kent Combs for hits in the game by B-L.

Scott was the only batter who was able to get to Drees in the second contest for a hit as O'Connors tagged a 9-0 loss on loser Frank Sherman.

Drees aided himself with four rbi's in the contest; Ron Mooney swatted a homer as well for O'Connors.

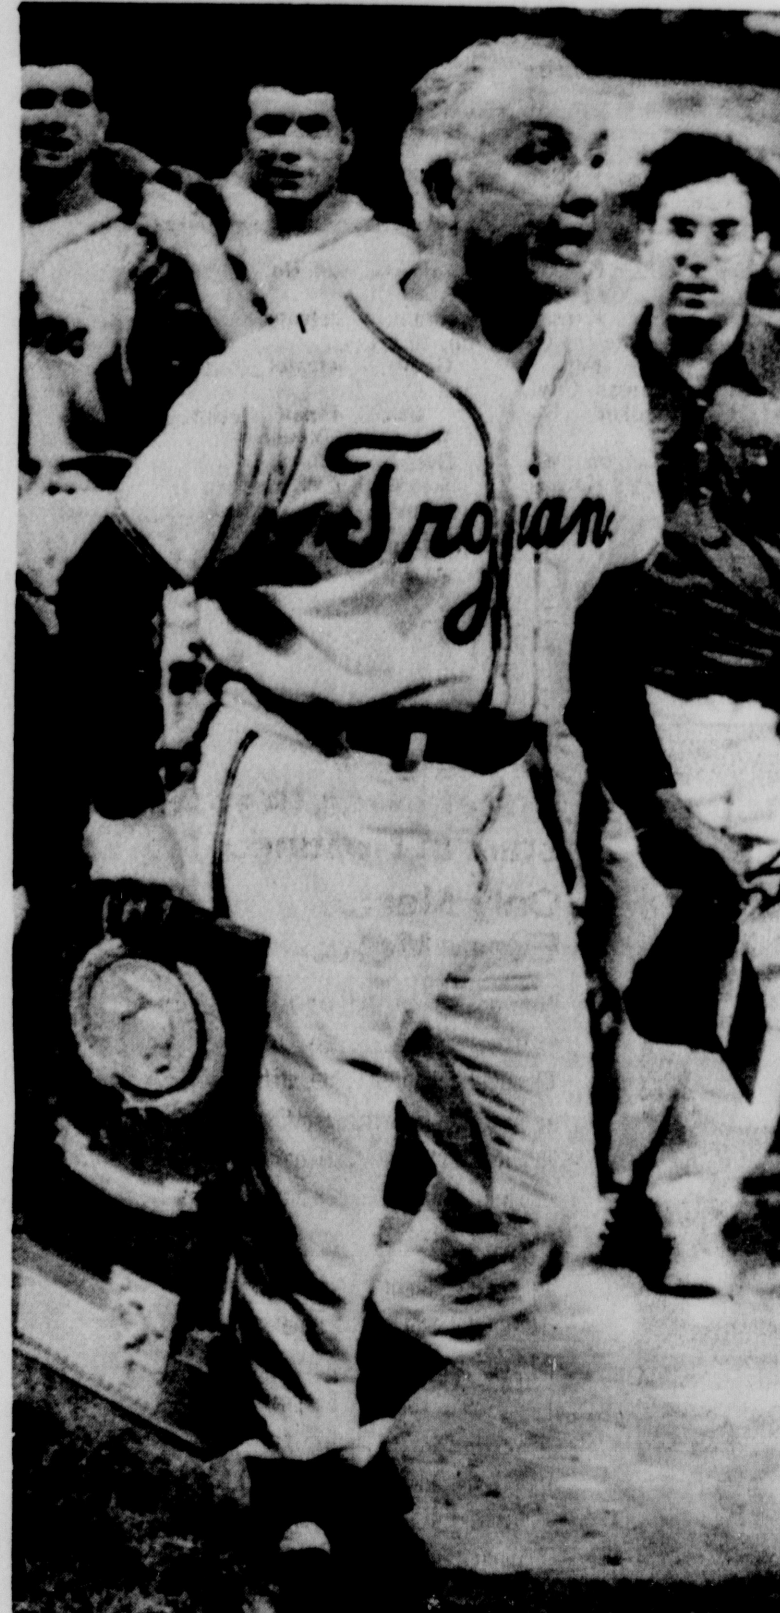

O'Connors will see Mid-Mo league action again Sunday night in a twinbill scheduled against LaMonte on the road. The opening game is slated for 8 p.m.

Unholy Angels

Tony C. Takes Johnson's Side

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Tony Conigliaro of the California Angels said today he knows the real Alex Johnson and likes him despite reports the other 24 players on the club are at odds with the controversial outfielder.

Conigliaro, also an outfielder, said there's "nobody on this club that I don't like, including Johnson. In fact, I like Alex. I sympathize with him."

"I know there's something bothering Alex inwardly. I don't know what it is. If he's having his problems, I'm sorry for him."

Conigliaro said that Johnson hit a home run this season in Minnesota "while I was hitting singles. I told Alex, 'I'll win the batting championship and you win the home run championship.'"

"Alex said, 'Let's just both of us cash World Series checks.'"

"That," said Conigliaro, "is the real Alex Johnson."

Conigliaro, obtained by the Angels from the Boston Red Sox during the winter, was interviewed in the wake of reports the California club is saturated with dissension and that Johnson is the No. 1 troublemaker.

Some Angels players also have been rumored to possess guns and knives in the clubhouse and Manager Lefty Phillips has been reported ready to resign over the internal difficulties. Earlier in the week, Johnson accused utility infielder Chico Ruiz of threatening him with a gun, a charge Ruiz denied.

Phillips denied Thursday night that he is ready to quit and wasted no time or words singling out Johnson as the main figure behind "any trouble that we have."

"Of course, I'm not going to quit," Phillips said. "I never quit. Baseball's been my life."

Sure, you get annoyed. We've been losing, and nobody likes to lose."

Phillips insisted there are no internal troubles in the Angels but said in virtually the same breath that "everything hinges around that left fielder." In almost a whisper, he added: "That Johnson."

"He doesn't give you his best effort. There's no way he wants to play baseball."

Phillips said he can't overlook the way Johnson talks to his teammates.

"When a guy keeps calling somebody obscene names for three or four months, it's going to have its reaction," Phillips explained.

"I can't understand why a man who attains the status of American League batting champion won't give you 100 per cent. He won't accept criticism from the other players, the coaches or the manager. I wish he'd go out and break his rear for this club and everything would be all right."

TNB Retains Slight Lead At R-G Club

Third National Bank retained their slim lead for the summer league trap shoot at the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club Wednesday night.

Third National, who has a season's total of 458, leads Turner's Sheet Metal by only two points and Standard Oil and Fertilizer by four points.

Farmers and Merchants Bank is in fourth place, only eight points behind Third National Bank.

The high individual score in Wednesday night's firing was turned in by Junior Abbott of Stover; he shot a perfect 25x25.

Ronnie Richardson, Clint Hibdon, Lewis Smith, David Dove, Randy Randall, Paul Ray Brownfield and Jim Cannon each shot 23x25 to tie for second-place honors.

Farmers and Merchants Bank turned in the high team total during the session at 104x125; Trojan Seed was second high with a total of 102x125, while S-M Sporting Goods was only one behind Trojan with a 101x125.

Cubs Win In 10

CHICAGO (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals dropped a 7-6, 10-inning decision to the Chicago Cubs Thursday afternoon, when Don Kessinger opened the frame with his sixth hit of the game. He later scored on Ron Santo's single. Kessinger had doubled in the eighth when the Cubs knotted the score, 6-6. He had four other hits in the game — all singles.

Chicago moved out front in the first two innings by 3-0. But Burt Hooton, a 21-year-old University of Texas star making his major league debut, couldn't hold it. Joe Torre hit his eighth home run in the second and the Cards tied it in the fourth on a pair of walks, an infield out and pitcher Steve Carlton's two-run single.

The Cards got their other three runs in the seventh on home runs by Julian Javier, his third, and Ted Simmons, also his third. Chris Zachary 2-5 was the loser in relief.

Labron Harris In Early Lead

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The odds against the opening round leader winning the U.S. Open Golf championship are staggering, but quiet, easy going Labron Harris is happy he's in a position to take the gamble.

The 29-year-old Harris, who has never won a professional golf tour championship, shot a three under par 35-32-67 Thursday to lead the field by one stroke in the 71st annual National Open.

In the previous 70 years of the Open, the world's most prized championship, only 13 first round leaders, or 18 per cent, have been on top at the finish, including last year's winner, Tony Jacklin of England.

Breathing down Harris' neck after the first 18 holes around the 6,544-yard Merion course were Lanny Wadkins, the 1970 U.S. Amateur champion, and oldsters Doug Sanders and Bob Goalby, each with two under par 68s. Bracketed another stroke back at 69 were Jim Colbert, PGA champion Jack Nicklaus and Bobby Nichols.

There were 10 at par 70, including former Open champion Lee Trevino, Masters king Charles Coody, Tom Weiskopf, Dale Douglass, and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Arnold Palmer shot three over par 73, and two time Open Champion Billy Casper 74. Gary Player carded a 76 and the South African was heckled by two black spectators over his nation's apartheid policy.

Harris, a former National Amateur champion, had eight one putt greens—five in succession—and took only 29 shots on the slick fast greens of historic Merion, home of two previous U.S. Open championships. He missed four times from six feet or less.

Harris was an early starter, posted his lead and then sat back and watched the field try to catch him.

Larry Hinson was five under par through 13 holes and then fell apart. Merion's yawning traps, ankle high rough and tricky greens enveloped the North Carolinian. He took four bogeys and a double bogey on the final five holes, losing six strokes and winding up even par for the day.

Behind Hinson, the 40-year-old Goalby, who had missed the cut in half of the 18 tournaments he started this year, cut four strokes off par before a double bogey cut him down at the 17th.

Defending champion Tony Jacklin posted a five over par 75, despite an eagle on the par five second hole when he chipped in from 157 feet. He took 36 putts and the longest he made was five feet. "You can't putt like that on this course and expect to score," he said.

The long hitting Nicklaus felt he played better than his 69, asserting, "It's not a good score from where I put it (the ball). I should have had 66 or 67."

Palmer was far from happy with his 73. "I let five or six iron shots get away," he lamented. "I putted very poorly—missed five or six inside 15 feet."

standing score Wadkins was asked if he was surprised at his excellent score.

"No, sir," Lanny answered, not batting a green-gray eye. "I wasn't surprised. I've been playing well. I had two 65s in practice."

Another questioner reminded the 21-year-old collegian that he had an unorthodox grip with his right hand pulled more over the club than most players.

"Ben Hogan grips the club that way, and he's done all right," Wadkins responded.

Somebody else, pressing the issue, wanted to know if he felt that pros had a big advantage over the amateurs in the Open.

"Sure, they are guaranteed $500," he said. "That would pay my expenses."

Casper in Rough . . .

Lanny Wadkins Very Confident

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — If brashness and confidence help, Jerry Lanston "Lanny" Wadkins, Jr., could be the first amateur since Johnny Goodman in 1933 to win the U.S. Open Golf championship. "Why not?" the sandy-haired Wake Forest University junior from Richmond, Va., responded when asked whether he thought such a feat was now possible. "On a given day, I think I can play with any of them."

Lanny doesn't just say it—he does it. He shot a 68 Thursday.

Going into today's second round of the 71st open at the Merion Club he is one of seven players under Merion's 70 par, one stroke off the pace set by Labron Harris with a 67.

Mitterwald's Bat Saves Minnesota

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Twins won a baseball game, by George.

It wasn't easy. They spotted Chicago two leads and George Mitterwald doubled their pleasure with two saving hits.

"I've just been swinging good," said Mitterwald after an early game-tying home run and a late winning single as the Twins topped the Chicago White Sox 7-6 in 11 wild innings Thursday night.

Mitterwald's run-scoring hit in the 11th, his fourth safety of the game, capped a four-run burst that rubbed out Chicago's three-run rally in its half of the frame.

Joe Horlen, the third White Sox pitcher of the inning who unsuccessfully tried to halt the Twins tide, sure enough didn't let Mitterwald hit to left.

He hit to right-center instead, some 400 feet away, and sent home the winning run.

In Thursday night's other American League games, the Detroit Tigers beat the Cleveland Indians 4-3; the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the New York Yankees 3-1 and the Kansas City Royals thumped the California Angels 5-0.

Only two games were played in the National League. The Chicago Cubs bounced the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 in 10 innings and the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Atlanta Braves 5-1.

Mitterwald had missed four games with a pulled muscle in his left leg, but the pain didn't curb his desire to play, according to Twins Manager Bill Rigney.

Tony Oliva's two-run single with the bases loaded scored Minnesota's first two runs and Rich Reese chased home another with a sacrifice fly to tie the contest. Then Mitterwald, who homered in the sixth to create a 3-3 tie, ripped "the longest single of my career" to send in Oliva.

Pinch-hitter Mike Andrews had delivered a two-out tie-breaking double in the top of the 11th to spark the three-run up-rising and give the White Sox a short-lived 6-3 lead.

Bill Freehan hit two doubles and winning pitcher Les Cain drove in a run for Detroit as the Tigers snapped a six-game winning streak for Cleveland ace Sam McDowell.

Cain's fifth-inning single gave the Tigers their first of two runs in that inning and a triple by Norm Cash and Freehan's double knocked in the fourth and decisive run in the eighth. McDowell, who lost his sixth in 13 decisions, was tagged for nine hits in six innings.

Ellie Hendricks hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning to pull Baltimore's East Division Leaders over New York. The blow cleared the center field fence after bouncing off leaping Bobby Murcer's glove. Pat Dobson pitched a five-hitter for the Orioles.

Jim McGlothlin scattered seven hits to complete his first game of the season and Lee May knocked in three runs for Cincinnati. McGlothlin, after giving up a run in the first, retired 15 Braves in a row before Ralph Garr's two-out single in the sixth.

THUNDERBOLT!

The ignition system with the fastest start in boating.

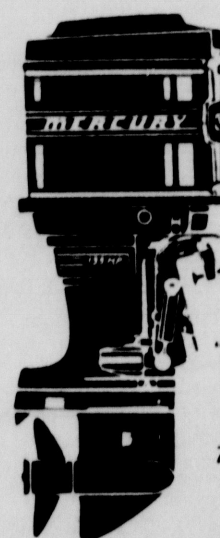

Only Merc.
Every Merc.

No other outboard ignition system measures up to Thunderbolt. The difference is in the amount of voltage Thunderbolt delivers to the spark plugs, and how fast it gets there.

Thunderbolt zaps up to 40,000 volts to the spark plugs in microseconds. Fastest, hottest spark of any outboard. So fast, voltage doesn't have a chance to leak away. And Thunderbolt keeps the engine firing smooth as silk at all speeds from idle to flat out.

Put that together with Perma Gap spark plugs (Mercurypioneered Tungsten alloy center electrode), which are designed to last for several years of use, and you have the best ignition system on the water.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We have often heard that two heads are better than one, but we doubt if this has ever been proven. We do know that two chances are better than one.

South can count eight sure winners. He can look for the ninth in either spades or diamonds. He abandons the idea of setting up the fourth spade because before he can do that the defense will be able to get in two spades, two hearts and their ace of diamonds.

That leaves dummy's fourth diamond as his only hope. He sees that it will surely score for him if East and West each hold exactly

Sauna Might Irritate Heart, Vascular Worry

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I'm interested in the use of sauna, whirlpool and sweat room. On recent examinations my blood pressure was 155-95 and I am taking medicine to bring it down. I am 60 and do enjoy walking two or three miles, play 18 holes and walk and then use health studio if I don't walk.

My doctor pointed out if I use the whirlpool over 106 degrees, I could get a negative reaction.

I am also interested in cutting my weight to about 170 or 165. I am 180 and 69 inches tall.

Dear Reader — I do not approve of hot whirlpools, heat rooms, steam rooms or sauna for people who have heart or vascular problems, including high blood pressure. The Federal Trade Commission has also taken a dim view of most of these items because they are dangerous for such patients. Much less do I approve of them for someone taking medicine for high blood pressure. Your doctor is right and you would do well to follow his advice.

I might make one suggestion, besides staying away from the heat treatments, try to lose even more weight. A man 69 inches tall with shoes should not weigh more than 160 pounds with clothes if he has a medium frame. The best guide, of course, is how much fat is under the skin, or that old spare tire. Many people who control their body weight ADEQUATELY do not need medicine to control their blood pressure. I am glad you are remaining active.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your article in which you mentioned that ballet dancers sometimes have changes in the ankle joints. I am 16 years old and have been taking ballet lessons for two and a half years. My ankle bones crack when I use them. Could this be osteoarthritis? If not what could it be and how can I stop it?

Dear Reader — All popping and cracking sounds from the joints do not mean arthritis. Just as a whip cracks, the movements of the tendons and other structures around the joints can cause cracking when the joint moves. There is not much you can do about the sounds made by use of the joints and these sounds don't mean you have or will have arthritis. On the whole, the benefits you get out of good exercise like ballet greatly outweigh the danger of getting arthritis of the ankle joints.

In Ranks

Army Specialist Four Barney C. Jave, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Jave, Versailles, recently received the Army commendation medal in Vietnam.

The medal was awarded for meritorious service. Such service can be over an extended period of time or for outstanding achievement in a single situation. In either case, the recipient must have demonstrated skills and dedication far above the average.

Spec. Jave received the award while assigned as a driver with Battery C, 1st Battalion, 14th Artillery of the 23rd Infantry Division near Chu Lai.

Army Private Larry D. Lefevers, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Evert C. Lefevers, 417 North Summit, recently completed nine weeks of advanced individual infantry training at Ft. Polk, La.

During the course, he received guerrilla training and lived under simulated Vietnam conditions for five days, fighting off night attacks and conducting raids on enemy villages. He was taught methods of removing booby traps, setting ambushes and avoiding enemy ambushes.

Small Town Has Lost Police

ASHLAND, Neb. (AP) — The community of Ashland was without a police department Thursday night with the resignation of the entire five-man force in a dispute over enforcement of traffic laws.

The resignations came at a city council meeting and were effective at 9 p.m. Thursday.

Police Chief Dan Frawley said the dispute developed because the residents of the community of 2,200 about 20-miles southwest of Omaha, "want two sets of laws ... one for kids and one for adults."

Frawley said he and his four policemen, along with Police Magistrate E. W. Davis, resigned when Mayor Lewis Hauschild sided with a city council member against the police department.

The chief said the trouble started with the installation of traffic radar. He said Ashland residents wanted youthful traffic violators ticketed but didn't want the same traffic regulations applied to adults.

The State Patrol office in Lincoln said while no extra men would be dispatched to Ashland, the patrol would assist the city in law enforcement in case of emergency.

Youth Suffers From Idol Famine

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — A bunch of teen-agers hang around my house. Some of them live there, most of them just give that impression. It's a good chance to see how this overprivileged class thinks, and the other day the subject of movie idols came up.

The girls are wild about Clark Gable.

The boys dream about Marilyn Monroe.

When you think about it, this is perfectly understandable. There's nobody around for today's teen-agers to worship, to adore, to fall in love with from that safest of distances, afar.

Perhaps that's the root of today's youthful rebellion. The kids are being robbed of the chance to have a crush on a movie star. The Constitution doesn't precisely give every American kid that right, but it's been a tradition for 50 years or so.

Think about growing up in the '30s, '40s and '50s. Everybody you saw on the screen was beautiful or handsome, depending on their sexual affiliation. Boys of my era could fall passionately in love with creatures such as Olivia DeHavilland (my own personal dream-choice) Ann Sherican, Greer Garson, Joan Crawford, Betty Grable, Rita Hayworth, Susan Hayward — the list was endless.

And girls had a nice assortment, too — Gable, Robert Taylor, Humphrey Bogart, Joel McCrea, Walter Pidgeon, Charles Boyer, and on and on.

Now consider the stars Hollywood is offering the youth of today.

Twenty years from now, can you imagine anybody saying, "When I was a lad, I had a crush on Barbra Streisand." Or "I was madly in love with Carrie Snodgrass."

How about Elliot Gould? Dustin Hoffman? Michael J. Pollard?

Look at this year's Oscar nominees — fine actors, but how much dream mileage could you get out of Jane Alexander or Glenda Jackson or Sarah Miles?

The thing is, there are very few genuine beauties around today and the few there are — Jacqueline Bisset and Katharine Ross are the only two that come quickly to mind — don't seem to be making it. Hollywood takes pride in the fact that this is the era of the unattractive star. There is some justification in this, in that acting ability is rewarded more now than ever before in Hollywood history.

But we are depriving the kids of idols. The crush on a movie star was a perfectly normal and healthy phase of growing up. If you were busily engaged in pursuing the unattainable dream, cutting out pictures, keeping scrapbooks, thinking beautiful thoughts, you had no spare time for throwing bombs into banks or making a meet with your neighborhood pusher.

I seriously doubt that a sudden rash of gorgeous girls on the movie screen will cure all our ills, or turn teen-agers into perfect little Lord Fauntleroy. It is no panacea, and my point isn't seriously to suggest that this is the root of all our problems.

But a little movie-star-worshipping never hurt anybody. And that phase of growing up is being withheld from today's youngsters, simply because of this grim lack of pretty girls and handsome guys.

It's no wonder that the teen-agers I know say that it is Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe they love. Hollywood, today, isn't making any new idols. If I were 17, I'd revolt, too.

NEW YORK (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg, 40, one of the "whiz kids" in the Defense Department under former Secretary Robert S. McNamara, is the man who gave the New York Times the secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war, a former Times reporter says.

Sidney Zion, the former Times reporter, identified Ellsberg as the source of the secret documents on a local radio interview Wednesday night.

Ellsberg, now a researcher at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was last seen by associates in his office Wednesday afternoon.

Zion and Ellsberg got access to the study after leaving government service and going to work for the Rand Corp., which had copies of the 47-volume Pentagon report.

The Times, whose publication of the articles based on the classified Pentagon documents has been halted temporarily by court order, declined to comment on Zion's identification of Ellsberg.

In Washington, the Justice Department, too, declined to comment directly on Zion's statements.

Elsewhere there were these developments in the controversy over the Times publication of articles about the 7,000-page study initiated in 1967 by McNamara:

—In U.S. District Court here, Judge Murray I. Gurfein reserved decision on the government's request to inspect source material used by the Times in preparing three published stories;

Meanwhile, at Gurfein's urging the Times agreed to list voluntarily for the government the secret Pentagon documents on which it based the series;

—Government and Times' lawyers prepared for a Friday hearing in court on a government move to enjoin further publication of the series;

—The Times continued to honor a temporary restraining order against such publication which remains in effect until 1 p.m. Saturday; —In Washington, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., urged publication of secret government data on Vietnam policies and actions of his late brother, President John F. Kennedy, saying, "I don't have any idea what is in it, or how it will turn out;"

—In Sacramento, Calif., Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the disclosure of the Pentagon study jeopardizes the efficiency of the nation's intelligence network and cooperation with allies in sensitive areas;

—In Canberra, Australia, Prime Minister William McMahon ordered his Defense Committee to review the beginnings of Australia's involvement in the Vietnam war;

Attack Jungle Outpost

SAIGON (AP) — Outnumbered South Vietnamese marines, helped by American jets and helicopters, beat off a North Vietnamese attack Thursday on their lonely jungle outpost below the demilitarized zone, Saigon headquarters reported.

Field reports said about 400 enemy attacked 200 marines camped outside Fire Base Sarge before dawn.

The North Vietnamese were forced to withdraw when the marine defenders called in heavy artillery and air support, as well as ground reinforcements.

South Vietnamese headquarters in Saigon said 63 enemy troops were killed in the fight.

Ten South Vietnamese were killed and seven were wounded, headquarters claimed.

Fire Base Sarge, an outpost abandoned by Americans after the U.S. 3rd Marine Division pulled out of Vietnam in 1969, now is one of two South Vietnamese bases in the westernmost region below the DMZ.

A South Vietnamese field commander told Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen that Sarge and the other outpost, Fire Base Fuller, are believed to be prime targets of a major North Vietnamese buildup in the area.

Action picked up slightly around Saigon, where the government has launched a major security campaign to protect a giant Armed Forces Day parade scheduled for Saturday.

Associated Press photographer Huynh Cong Ut reported that a U.S. helicopter gunship was shot down southeast of the capital. Two Americans were wounded in the crash.

The U.S. Command in Saigon reported 25 Americans were killed in combat last week—fourth lowest toll this year.

Reveals Times' Source

Sidney Zion, a former New York Times reporter shown during his appearance on ABC TV's Dick Cavett Show Tuesday, said the newspaper obtained its copy of the Pentagon Vietnam Report from Daniel Ellsberg, a former employee of the Rand Corporation. Zion said Ellsberg worked in the Defense Department's international security division until 1965 when he left the government to join the Rand Corp., a "think tank" in Santa Monica, Calif., which conducts sensitive defense research. Ellsberg has since left Rand and is currently working at the Center for International Studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) as a senior research associate.

Volunteers List For Government

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times voluntarily turned over to the government Thursday a list of secret Pentagon documents upon which the newspaper based its interrupted series on origins of the Vietnam war.

The U.S. attorney's office acknowledged in early evening that it had received the list.

Federal Judge Murray Gurfein had urged the Times to cooperate voluntarily. Meanwhile, he had shelved the government's motion to examine the newspaper's file of any data relating to the Pentagon study.

He warned, however, "I'm not tolerating any fishing expedition into the files of any newspaper."

The documents mentioned were a 47-volume secret Pentagon study covering the period 1945-1967 and entitled, "History of U.S. Decision-Making Process on Vietnam Policy," and a summary of "The Command and Control Study of the Tonkin Gulf Incident."

The Times had expressed concern lest Gurfein allow the government full access to its files on the series, thereby possibly uncovering the identity of the source from whom the newspaper obtained the Pentagon documents.

A former New York Times reporter, Sidney Zion, said Wednesday night the newspaper's source was Daniel Ellsberg, a former Defense Department employee and now a senior research associate at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Zion did not say where he got his information.

Last Sunday, the Times began publication of its series, dealing at the outset with escalation of the Vietnam war by former President Lyndon B. Johnson. On Tuesday, the government filed suit, asking an injunction to bar further publication of the series.

Gurfein issued a temporary restraining order and the Times interrupted publication, effective with its Wednesday morning edition.

Meanwhile, Gurfein scheduled a full-dress injunction hearing for Friday. In that connection, Asst. U.S. Atty. Michael Hess, trying the suit for the government, said Thursday:

"There is serious question whether part of these proceedings will have to be conducted in camera (secret) session. Secret classified documents are the heart of the lawsuit."

Nixon Requests Aid Against Drug Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, declaring that drug abuse is America's public enemy No. 1, asked Congress Thursday for some new laws and an extra $155 million "to fight and defeat this enemy."

One of the new laws would authorize the military to keep men in uniform as long as 21 days beyond their normal discharge date should they return from Vietnam or other overseas posts as addicts.

In a special message sent to Congress after Nixon conferred for two hours with the Democratic and Republican leaders, the President also said he was creating immediately a new special action Office of Drug Abuse Prevention within the White House. He wants Congress to authorize the office by statute and broaden its powers.

The extra $155 million for the 1972 fiscal year that begins July 1 would raise total federal outlays for antidrug activities to $371 million for the 12 months.

The bulk of the extra money—$105 million—would be earmarked for the treatment and rehabilitation of addicts. Appearing before White House newsmen to outline his message, Nixon followed up his declaration that drug abuse is public enemy No. 1 by saying:

"In order to fight and defeat this enemy, it is necessary to wage a new, all-out offensive."

Simultaneously Nixon announced that the first head of his new drug abuse prevention office will be 37-year-old Dr. Jerome H. Jaffe, who has been director of Illinois's statewide program to rehabilitate narcotics addicts.

Jaffe, in talking to reporters, indicated that he has no quarrel with Nixon's strong stand against use of marijuana—but left the impression his personal attitude on the subject is quite flexible.

Nixon in his message said the drug problem "has assumed the dimensions of a national emergency" and likened it to a tide which has swept the country in the past decade and "afflicts both the body and the soul of America."

The chief executive said an aim of his multifaceted program is to "tighten the noose around the necks of drug peddlers, and thereby loosen the noose around the necks of drug users."

He announced that starting Saturday, urine specimens will be taken from all service personnel destined for return to the United States from South Vietnam. If drug traces are found, he said, the men and women will undergo a 7-day detoxification program in Vietnam and, if they are addicts, will—assuming Congress approves—be kept in uniform for up to 21 days beyond their normal date of discharge while going through a Pentagon-operated rehabilitation program.

Nixon further asked Congress to amend foreign aid acts to permit the United States to offer technical assistance to the police authorities of Communist countries—even those with which it has no diplomatic relations—to encourage a broader battle against international trade in drugs.

Some $2 million was sought for research and development of herbicides to destroy natural narcotics-producing plants without harming the environment. And additional funds would be used to expand a federal search for a non-addictive substitute for codeine, an opium derivative.

Reports Economy Moving Slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief economic adviser says the economy is moving too slowly to cut into the high rate of unemployment, a prime goal of the administration.

Dr. Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said the President will decide in July or August whether to stay with present policy or propose new economic stimulants, such as a tax cut.

In an interview with The Associated Press, the economist supplied the first official word that the administration is dissatisfied with the pace of the economic recovery.

McCracken said he thought economic statistics for April, May and June, including the quarterly Gross National Product figures, will reflect a "substantial, and a pretty good, expansion by historical standards."

"At the same time," he said, "we have to recognize that the expansion is not yet moving fast enough to eat into the unemployment picture. And I think it is important for us to achieve the degree of economic expansion which will do it."

Nixon embarked on an economic expansion program this year to trim the unemployment rate, which rose from 3.9 per cent of the work force in January, 1970, to 6 per cent in January of this year. Last month, the figure moved up to 6.2 per cent, instead of declining as anticipated.

The President had projected a 9 per cent increase in total economic output this year as being the rate of expansion needed to reduce unemployment below 5 per cent by the end of the year.

Stepped-up federal spending, with budget deficits totaling $30 billion in fiscal 1971 and 1972, and an expansive monetary policy by the Federal Reserve, were counted on to help.

"I suspect that we have not yet seen the full effect of those policies translated into the economy," he said. "As to whether what has been going on is what we want to stay with throughout the year, we'll have to evaluate that."

Nixon said in a news conference last month he would decide whether to propose additional tax cuts or other measures to further stimulate the economy after seeing the results of second-quarter economic statistics, most of which will become available in July.

McCracken said it was not unusual for unemployment to remain high for six to eight months after an expansion of business activity resumes.

McCracken would not predict whether the administration would move faster in specific situations, such as this year's steel negotiations, to hold down wage and prices increases.

House Upholds Refusal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continuing Congress' refusal to interfere with President Nixon's handling of the Indochina war, the House rejected Thursday even the semblance of a Dec. 31 deadline on the conflict.

The principal vote was 254 to 158 against it.

The House also refused to urge an April 30 U.S. pullout in rapidly voting down one after another five different proposals for putting it on record for a date certain withdrawal of U.S. forces.

The end-of-the-war amendments were filed to a $21.1 billion military weapons authorization bill which was passed 331 to 58 and sent to the Senate.

The votes came just one day after the Senate refused 55 to 42 to cut off funds for the war effective Dec. 31.

Other amendments on the matter are pending in the Senate.

The crucial House vote came on the Nedzi-Whalen amendment urging a Dec. 31 deadline on the war unless this would jeopardize release of American prisoners and safe withdrawal of U.S. troops.

The House shouted down by voice vote a move by Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., to urge the President to withdraw all U.S. forces "by the earliest practicable date" from Indochina.

Backers of the Dec. 31 date said it would express Congress' desire to end the war quickly although it would not actually cut off funds for the war at the end of the year.

The House amendment was proposed by Reps. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., and Charles W. Whalen, R-Ohio.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird informed the House he believes the measure would order all U.S. air support and U.S. activity in Indochina halted as of Dec. 31. But, he said, it is so ambiguous that it would embroil the administration and Congress in conflict over the actual intent.

"Continuing U.S. air support is critical," Laird told the House in a letter read by House Armed Services Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La.

Nedzi and Whalen stressed their amendment to a $21 billion long-range weapons procurement authorization bill could not actually start cutting off weapons and troops for the war before 1973 or 1974.

Nedzi said the amendment would register Congress' view, however, "that we must withdraw completely and within a relatively early time."

It's Time To Set Vietnam Withdrawal Date

By Carl T. Rowan

WASHINGTON — The time clearly has arrived for President Nixon to set a Vietnam withdrawal date with the public understanding that the Communists will immediately enter into discussion leading to an early release of prisoners of war.

Rowan

What the United States stands to lose by setting a date is trifling compared with the miseries of our imprisoned GIs and the agony of their relatives.

It will surely be one of the cruelest episodes of this mean, wearying war if the POW issue drags on as primarily a domestic political football.

It was two years ago that the Pentagon launched a deliberate campaign to arouse American emotions over the POWs. This has produced public relations gestures like having a former prisoner represent the President at an opening day baseball game and such harsh charges as President Nixon himself saying, "We have had a very difficult experience with the North Vietnamese, who have, without question, been the most barbaric in their handling of prisoners of any nation in modern history."

Considering what the Nazis and Japanese did in World War II, or even what the South Vietnamese have done to some prisoners, that is a charge no thinking American can accept "without question." The administration has never given the public any evidence that would support such a charge.

But let us assume that our POWs are the victims of barbaric treatment. That would be all the more reason for a compassionate President to gamble to get them home rather than rest on semantic quibbles about the difference between Hanoi's LETTING THEM GO and Hanoi's TALKING ABOUT letting them go once we declare a withdrawal date.

The suspicion arises that the Pentagon's POW campaign is directed less at getting the POWs home and more at keeping the public angry enough at Hanoi to support a turtle's pace withdrawal that will leave a large residual U.S. force in Vietnam.

Suppose the U.S. did set a date with the expectation that Hanoi and the Viet Cong would begin immediate discussion dealing solely with an early release of all prisoners.

If the Communist side reneged, what would the U.S. have lost? Nothing. It could simply wipe out the announced withdrawal date the way it wiped out the decision to stop bombing the north.

Suppose the Communists do enter meaningful talks and quickly release American prisoners? It would mean that by announcing a withdrawal date the President would have ended years of suffering by hundreds of men and their families.

And an agreement on prisoner exchanges would surely increase the prospects of meaningful talks about a war settlement in general.

The problem, as some see it, is that if the Communists released the prisoners the U.S. would then be stuck with a promise to get out by a certain date. Mr. Nixon has argued that this would offer the Communists too much opportunity to exploit our departure militarily.

It is about time we all started facing some realities:

1. The Communists know that the American public's stomach for this war is weaker than sassafras tea. They will hold our prisoners until doomsday rather than offer them up in advance as payment for a U.S. withdrawal.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong spokesmen told newsmen in Paris last week that they would discuss a full exchange of prisoners without relation to other questions if the U.S. sets a withdrawal date. That is about as much of a public commitment as any U.S. diplomat ought to expect considering the Communists' belief that if they sit tight the U.S. must get out anyhow.

2. The administration's objection to setting a date for withdrawal probably has nothing to do with potential Communist military exploitation. The real problem is that the Communists will insist on a date for TOTAL U.S. withdrawal, and a total pullout is nowhere in the plans of President Nixon. So the American prisoners are, in effect, hostages to Mr. Nixon's desire to keep a substantial residual force in Vietnam for years.

That is the hard truth about our prisoners who have endured a wretched plight for so long.

It was a gamble, a bad gamble, that got them in those POW camps. It will take a gamble to get them out. The sooner that gamble is taken, the sooner the politicians can tussle over other matters which don't tear so ruthlessly at the heartstrings of so many Americans.

State Gives Nod To Young Voters

The Missouri General Assembly has given the state's youth a resounding vote of confidence by ratifying a constitutional amendment to give 18-year-olds the vote in all elections.

This was completed Monday when the House approved the resolution by a vote of 133 to 14. Currently the 18-year-old vote pertains only to presidential elections.

The measure, after encountering earlier opposition, finally passed the Senate last week by a vote of 29 to 2.

Thus Missouri becomes the 33rd state in the Union to ratify the proposed amendment. A total of 38 states must do so before the amendment becomes law.

We would hope that the remaining five states ratify the amendment in short order, so that our youth can assume the full privileges of citizenship, for which the vast majority of them are fully qualified.

Sen. Ike Skelton, the sponsor of the resolution, went to the heart of the matter when he declared recently:

"If we are telling young people to work within the system, we should surely give them the choice to do that. The most important tool is the right to vote."

Test Coming

Which Way For U.S. After Vietnam War?

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The day it becomes clear we are largely out of Vietnam will be the dawning of a new age of self-discovery for Americans.

Vietnam has been the great alibi. For years now, it has been argued by diverse groups in different ways that, so long as we were there, we would have neither the will nor the capacity to fix up our crumbling cities, get people out of poverty, improve health care, attend to the racial struggle.

Well, on Peace Day Plus One we'll begin to find out just how authentic that alibi has been.

Some recent travelers abroad tell me that influential Europeans think Americans today are, on the whole, a pretty unstable people. You can't translate that into pro-war attitudes on the part of these Europeans. But they believe the war has destroyed our balance and perspective.

If they are wrong, if we still are stable, we really won't start to learn for sure until we're out. A key thing to watch will be whether we quickly grab for new alibis in the event our present chaos and confusion continue.

Money will be a great focus. For two or three years we've been getting warnings very soundly based, that there will be no whopping peace dividend after Vietnam. Yet the country is full of disbelievers on this score. Those who have disbelieved, or have postponed looking at the evidence, may under go a great awakening after Peace Day.

Disillusionment is said to be deep today. What new depths will it plumb when the harsh money realities sink home with fresh force? What frustrations will follow that "discovery" and what attitudes and actions will they spawn?

From President Nixon to Sen. George McGovern, it is taken for granted that "there will be no more Vietnams." The feeling everywhere is that, after six years or more in Southeast Asia, the American people just won't lend any kind of support to limited wars.

Still, there obviously is no guarantee that in the decades immediately ahead the world is suddenly going to become placid. Or that the Soviet Union, Red China and perhaps some others are really going to renounce their pushy ways.

How would we react to a new crisis over Berlin or Cuba? Maybe there isn't going to be any. But in this wobbly world one would be silly to bank on it.

Those long gray vessels the Russians have in the Mediterranean aren't fishing trawlers. Late Moscow has been sending "cargo ships" to, of all places, Spanish ports. But those detecting devices they've got on the masts are not designed to sniff out markets. They're monitoring our bases in Spain.

And what the Soviets are doing with and for the Egyptians hardly comes under the head of peace-mongering.

The British author C. P. Snow is only one among many who have said in recent times that a great nation must do, and must believe it can do, many big things at one time.

Actually, throughout our Vietnam era we have done much more than the one-things-at-a-time boys would have us believe. Though we don't keep up with the problem, we have lifted millions out of poverty. We have provided vastly better health care (with more still needed), widened education, begun to attack pollution, gone to the moon, kept a strong force in Europe, eased some parts of racial strife.

The question for peace day: Can we find the resolves for larger tasks and new crises after hearing for six years that Vietnam destroyed our ability to do anything else?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — When Congress passed the Landrum-Griffin Act over the howls of the nation's union bosses in 1959, America thought it had seen the end of corruption and tyranny in the labor movement.

But 12 years have now passed, and many union leaders are just as crooked and dictatorial as ever. The Labor Department, which is supposed to enforce the law, instead takes a timid, boys-will-be-boys attitude.

The result is that millions of honest, rank-and-file workers are under the thumbs of their union bosses. For them, the great American principles of freedom and democracy are a mirage where their union is concerned.

Take the huge New Jersey local of the International Union of Operating Engineers, a vast organization that represents machinery operators.

The local president is the notorious Pete Weber, a convicted extortionist, who is trying through last-ditch legal efforts to avoid a 10-year jail sentence.

Members of the local will tell you that it is impossible even to get in to see Weber about a problem, let alone get any help from him. And they complain that, with rising unemployment, he discriminates brazenly in handing out work only to men who support him.

The insurgents in Weber's local have now put forward a highly qualified veteran member to oppose him in this year's election. But when the nomination meeting was held the other day, the challenger, Larry Cahill, was ruled ineligible because he had retired.

This was an obvious fraud, as retired men hold offices in a number of locals throughout the union. Cahill had meticulously kept his dues paid and was clearly a "member in good standing."

Having ruled Cahill off the ballot, Weber's man then approved the nomination of Weber's brother. Now, if Weber goes to jail before his election, his brother will be the winner, thus assuring that the dynasty will continue.

Merry-Go-Round

U.S. Labor Picture Both Good and Bad

Cahill twice wrote to Hunter Whaston, the national union president, asking for help. He got back two curt letters. There would be no interference with the Weber machine.

A similar situation exists in the United Mine Workers, whose President Tony Boyle has not only distinguished himself as a first-rate freebooter but has managed to maintain a dictatorial grip on his union.

Boyle appoints virtually all the officers of the union's subordinate districts, an arrangement that blatantly violates the Landrum-Griffin Act.

The Labor Department sued the union to stop the practice in 1964. Incredibly, the case has yet to come to trial, largely because the government lollygagged around for years and let the union lawyers gain repeated postponements.

More recently, the Labor Department refused to investigate the UMW's 1968 presidential election, despite documented pleas from insurgent candidate Jock Yablonski, until the election was over and Yablonski was murdered, along with his wife and daughter.

The investigation quickly turned up a haul of violations and the department sued in federal court to invalidate the election. The case was supposed to come to trial this summer, with the government consenting. Now the case won't be tried until fall.

Ever since the Navy began beating some of its scissiors into plow-shares, there has been a howling hubbub in the armed forces over hair styles.

Not since the controversies over the bust measurements of Waves and glockenspiels in service bands have the brass hats been so exercised.

Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, the Navy chief, started the uproar by permitting his sailors to wear their hair long and to grow beards and moustaches. As a gesture of surrender to the styles, he even lengthened his own sideburns.

This caused a tontorial tempest throughout the military establishment. The Marine Corps, which comes under the Navy, refused to lower its standards or its sideburns. Gen. Leonard Chapman, Jr., the commandant, continued to trim his sideburns short and to require all Marines to do likewise.

The Army, taking a stand somewhere in the middle, came out with an elaborate "haircut policy." This was rushed to all Army outposts in a document marked "For Official Use Only."

"The hair on top of the head will be neatly groomed," directed the new order. "The length and-or bulk of the hair will not be excessive or present a ragged, unkempt or extreme appearance. Hair will present a tapered appearance and, when combed, it will not fall over the ears or eyebrows or touch the collar except for closely cut hair at the back of the neck."

As for sideburns, they must not "extend downward beyond the lowest part of the exterior ear opening." Mustaches are permitted if they don't droop "beyond the corners of the mouth." But no goatees nor beards.

To illustrate all this, the Army has spent $5,400 to print up 100,000 color posters showing the acceptable hair styles. These will be posted in Army barber shops.

Footnote: the glockenspiel controversy developed years ago when the Navy band asked its glockenspiel player to double up in brass and play a second instrument. His pride was deeply hurt, and a smooth-talking Air Force officer persuaded him to desert the Navy and join the Air Force band.

How Sundae Was Named

It was against the law to serve ice cream sodas on Sunday, so a clerk at a fountain in a drugstore at Evanston, Ill., served ice cream and syrup, minus the soda, to stay within the letter of the law. The new "dish" became known as "Sunday," and later, "sundae."

Prosperity Dominates East Trade

By SEHYON JOH
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Trading volume on the Tokyo stock exchange zoomed to 42.7 billion shares in 1970 as the Japanese economy boomed.

This total swamped the 2.9 billion shares traded last year on the New York Stock Exchange.

But the dollar value of the transactions was another story.

At the end of 1970 the value of all shares listed on the Tokyo exchange totaled the equivalent of $25.4 billion while the value of shares listed on the New York exchange amounted to $636 billion. That's because the average value of a Japanese share is 41 cents, compared with $55 for New York exchange shares.

A sharp rise in both volume and prices on the Tokyo exchange began in 1968 when foreigners—about 70 per cent of them Europeans—sought safety in Japanese securities during an international monetary crisis stemming from devaluation of the British pound and a rush to convert various currencies into gold.

The Finance Ministry reported that in fiscal 1969 foreigners bought Japanese stocks with a total value of $1.66 billion. In fiscal 1970, the figure dropped to $1.04 billion.

Americans have accounted for only about 30 per cent of total foreign investments, but Japanese brokers say American investments have been increasing since last year.

When foreigners started buying stocks on the Tokyo exchange, they concentrated on a limited number of high-priced issues such as Sony Corp., Hitachi Ltd., Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., and a few other electric and pharmaceutical issues. Japanese investors rushed in, too, pushing the prices of those issues to record highs.

Foreign investors recently have begun to buy low and medium-priced issues after foreign ownership of many popular companies reached the 25 per cent limit set by the government.

Under rising pressure at home and from abroad, the government is expected to lift some of its restriction on foreign capital investments in the fourth round of the nation's capital liberalization program scheduled for next September. Finance Ministry officials have declined to say to what extent the restrictions would be eased.

"Too many contracts are being taken from us," roared the Secretary of Defense. "Agent 000½, disguise yourself as a bridge player and see what is wrong."

Within two days 000½ had infiltrated the bridge club where the contracts had been reported missing. The following day he was arrested and charged with stealing a vulnerable contract.

He was brought before the Secretary. "Sit down, 000½," the secretary said as he reached for a cigar, "and give me a full report."

"East overtook the king of diamonds with the ace and returned the suit. Colonel West won and continued. I ruffed; drew trumps with three leads and led a heart to dummy's eight. East won with the 10 and played a club. Later, dummy's ace of hearts picked up West's king and I finessed against East's jack to make my contract."

"So, Colonel West has been giving away defense secrets," said the Secretary. "Exactly! His two diamond showed up with ace and another diamond and the Colonel followed to three trumps I knew where the king of hearts was. Even the least security conscious bidder would not try a two diamond call with a king-queen suit without at least a king on the side. Had the Colonel kept silent about operations I would never have made the winning play."

"Good work, 000½! Have a cigar."

"litigation" between the Sedalia Building and Trades Council and the groups who attended Wednesday's meeting. The lawsuit claims that some employees of AMCON were not paid in accordance with federal minimum wage standards.

A HUD lawyer present at the meeting said that if the court decided in favor of the Building Trades Council and declared that the Sedalia project fell under federal standards in this way, then perhaps the entire project should come under "federal standards."

Brown replied that this would be the first time in the history of the courts that a legal decision on one specific issue would have "wide ramifications" for an entire project.

He also pointed out that methods of dealing with housing projects such as those used by HUD "will come as a great revelation to opponents of public housing..." He said "any crackpot could freeze an entire project" simply by filing a lawsuit in connection with it, and that the country's "entire public housing program could be forever balled up in litigation."

Robert Fritz, city counselor, asked if the people of Sedalia were to be denied housing because of HUD's actions. He stated that regardless of the outcome of the suit, the buildings were going to end up being used by someone.

HUD officials said that such deficiencies as the need for door thresholds in some dwellings, cold water pipes which were not properly covered with insulation in the attics of some units, and the fact that an oil-base paint was not used in kitchen areas gave "some flavor of the serious total problem."

In reply to these criticisms E. Glenn Lewis, president of the Sedalia Housing Authority, said that the units were not designed to be equipped with "marbled floors and golden doorknobs," but were meant to provide housing for persons with low incomes.

His statements were echoed by William M. Tate, AMCON's vice-president of urban development, who said that the real persons being hurt by the dispute "are not you and I," but those who have never known "four rain-tight walls and a roof."

"The morality of this issue," Tate said, "far outweighs any legal and administrative technicalities."

Local officials involved in the dispute were promised by Slattery near the end of the meeting that a "detailed list" of the areas in which the project does not comply with Section 23 of the Federal Housing Act would be sent to Sedalia as soon as possible.

"I deplore as much as you the amount of time this is taking," he said.

MARSHALL JUNCTION — The Sedalia Dr. Pepper softball team dropped New Salem Baptist in both ends of a doubleheader Tuesday night by the scores of 10-0 and 15-4.

Jim Werneke hurled a one-hit shutout in the opening tilt. Dale Fangohr was the winning pitcher in the second contest, which was called at the end of five innings because of the ten-run rule.

Larry Cureton took the loss for New Salem in the opener; New Salem used three pitchers in trying to stop Dr. Pepper unsuccessfully in the second game. They included Danny Wilhoit, Larry Werneke and Cureton.

Wayne Brandes hit a pair of home runs in the twinbill sweep for Dr. Pepper; George Dehn hit a round trip blast for New Salem in the second game.

Dr. Pepper will host Coca-Cola of Jefferson City Sunday night in Housel Park. The first contest is slated to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Accidents

Michael D. Fisher, 18, Whiteman AFB, was taken to the base hospital after a car-motorcycle accident in the driveway of Cook's DX Service Station, 808 South Limit, at 7:42 p.m. Wednesday.

Fisher's injuries, according to police, were not believed serious.

The accident apparently occurred as Fisher was test-driving a motorcycle when it collided with a 1967 Ford driven by Leon A. Fischer, 41, Stover.

The front of the motorcycle and the left front of the Ford were damaged.

Police Report

Eggs and tissue paper spoiled the appearance of the house of Mrs. William Estes, 1000 East 13th, while she was visiting relatives.

The incident was reported to Sedalia police at 10:16 p.m. Wednesday.

John Vandecamp, 406 West Seventh, reported to police at 10 a.m. Thursday that four rubber mats, valued at $20, and a rug, valued at $5, were taken from his front porch sometime between Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sheriff's Report

An arrest warrant was issued Thursday by Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney, Adam Fischer, for Billy Gene Wahlers, Stover, who has been charged with uttering a forged instrument involving a $201.40 Social Security check belonging to Lawrence P. Klein, Smithton.

Wahlers is alleged to have cashed the check at Third National Bank on March 3.

Wahlers is being held in Camden County jail, Stover, on a charge of driving while intoxicated, according to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

Fires In The City

A skill left on the stove too long at the apartment of Ira McMacken at Town House Manor, 1001 State Fair Blvd., caused $100 smoke damage to the apartment at 6:08 p.m. Tuesday.

A fire of undetermined origin caused an estimated $1,000 damage to an apartment occupied by Warren Hickey, 610 West 10th, Wednesday night.

Firemen were called to the scene about 11:53 p.m.

The fire apparently started in a mattress in the bedroom. Fire Capt. Edward Shine, 1623 East 10th, said the bulk of the damage was caused more from smoke and water than from the fire itself. He said the fire was restricted to the west side of the second floor apartment building.

Shine said that there was also a certain amount of water damage to ground floor apartments from water seeping through the ceiling.

Enrollment

Increasing

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — An unofficial survey conducted by the junior college section of the State Department of Education shows this summer's total enrollment in Missouri's 12 public junior college districts is 11 per cent higher than last summer.

Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, state commissioner of education, said 12,517 students are enrolled in the 12 districts this summer, compared to an enrollment of 11,296 in the summer of 1970.

Mallory noted that these districts had a total enrollment of 37,071 during the 1970-71 school year. "Looking ahead," he added, "we believe the 1971-72 enrollment in these community colleges will exceed 40,000."

The 12 districts are located in Sedalia, Neosho, Union, Hillsboro, Kansas City, Flat River, Joplin, St. Joseph, Moberly, St. Louis-St. Louis County, Poplar Bluff and Trenton.

Birth Rate

Increase

Is Reported

Even though Pettis County had a birth rate increase nearly four times over the state average last year, the number of live births was offset by an increasing death rate.

The Missouri Bureau of Vital Statistics said there were 241 births in Pettis County from last October through this March, compared to 247 deaths for the same period.

Pettis County recorded 29 births and 42 deaths in March this year, the report said.

According to the bureau's figures, 1970 showed the largest number of live births in Missouri since 1965. The 1970 state-wide figure represented a 2.9 per cent increase over the number of births in the state in 1969.

At the same time, the number of live births in Pettis County jumped by 11.8 per cent in 1970 over the 1969 figures. There were 550 resident live births in 1970 in the county, compared to 492 in 1969.
